4 die in Pike plane crash

Pocono Record Reporter
PECKS POND — Four persons were killed Saturday when their private plane plunged into the side of the mountain near Pecks Pond in Pike County and burst into flames.

Three of the victims were found inside the aircraft "burned almost beyond recognition" on Monday, according to state police at Milford.

A fourth passenger had been thrown from the plane upon impact and was found dead several feet beyond the crash site, police said.

Tpr. Michael Chaplin, state police at Milford, said the single-engine, green and white Beechcraft Bonanza plunged directly into the side of a mountain in an area owned by the Blooming Grove Fishing and Hunting Club.

Police discovered the charred bodies and mangled plane wreckage shortly after 11 a.m. Monday, five miles south of Interstate 84 in Blooming Grove Township.

State police identified the victims as the pilot, Frank Kipikasha, 52, of Clifton, N.J.; Jack Ackerman, 45, Denville, N.J. and Harold Bobkier, 50, Nutley, N.J. and his son Joseph, 14.

The bodies had been lying at the crash site for two days before a Civil Air Patrol plane discovered the wreckage.

The private plane, owned by Kipikasha, left the Caldwell-Wright Airport near Newark, N.J. at 8:45 a.m. Saturday, heading for Cherry Ridge Airport near Honesdale, Wayne County. Police said the plane was almost half-way to its destination when it crashed about 9:30 a.m. in the heavily forested area.

Officials from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) investigated the cause of the crash late Monday afternoon, but did not have an official report.

According to Tpr. Chaplin, the plane took off several tree tops 50 to 70 feet high before impact.

"The plane took off one large tree top before the pilot pulled up. It hit one more tree and then crashed into the side of the hill," Chaplin said.

Four state policemen and 18 members of the Civil Air Patrol worked for nearly five hours Monday to remove the victims and the wreckage from the scene.

Pike County Coroner Duncan Stroyan pronounced the pilot and three passengers dead at about 1:30 p.m. and ruled the deaths "as accidental due to a fire after the crash."

He said all victims will be taken to Denville, N.J. for funeral arrangements.

Charles Parker of FAA, who briefly inspected the site, was informed by Civil Air Force members that there were no witnesses to the crash.

Parker said Daniel Sayers, a National Transportation Safety Board official, would be responsible for making a report on the tragedy.

Parker said FAA officials would still have to determine whether Kipikasha was flying in inclement or foggy weather early Saturday.

According to Chaplin, Kipikasha was an "instrument rated pilot" which allowed him to fly in inclement weather.

Ford vetoes legislation to roll back prices of oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Monday vetoed legislation that would have rolled back oil prices, and vowed he would reject extension of existing petroleum price controls unless Congress adopts his energy program.

The President is considering calling Congress back from its scheduled vacation next month for a special session if necessary to get an oil energy program enacted before current price controls are due to expire. Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters.

Ford said he vetoed the bill "because it would increase petroleum consumption, cut domestic production, increase reliance on insecure petroleum imports and avoid the issue of phasing out unwieldy price controls."

Unless a new law is passed, federal price control over petroleum ends Aug. 31. Ford wants a decontrol of prices spread over 30 months plus a windfall tax on excess profits by oil companies and tax rebates to consumers for the higher energy costs that his program will bring.

"I urge Congress not to disapprove my administrative plan of gradual decontrol," Ford said in his veto message. "If it is accepted, I will accept a simple extension of price and allocation authorities."

Ford's decontrol plan is expected to be killed by the heavily Democratic House on Tuesday.

"If decontrol is not accepted, I will have no choice but to veto the simple six-month extension of these (current control) authorities now being considered by Congress," Ford said.

The vetoed bill would have rolled back the price of oil from wells dug since 1973 — so-called "new oil" — from $13.25 a barrel to $11.28. It would have kept the current price of $5.25 a barrel for petroleum coming from wells dug before 1973 — "old oil" that amounts to some 60 per cent of domestic production.

Ford said this bill would have brought "even more complex regulations." He said it would have made even more difficult his goal of making America independent of foreign fuel suppliers by 1985.

Ford's veto of the price rollback bill had been expected and congressional leaders were prepared to counter by dumping his proposal and then simply extending existing controls for six months.

Postal workers sign new contract

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiators agreed Monday on a new three-year contract which will give postal workers a $1,500 pay increase in its first two years plus other benefits, and probably drive up postal rates before the end of the year.

The settlement between the Postal Service and four unions representing 670,000 workers came three hours after the old contract had run out at midnight, raising the possibility of the first nationwide mail strike.

President James Rademacher, of the 193,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers said "I feel that our members will ratify by a substantial majority. It is the best we can do. There is enough in this contract."

The executive of the largest union, the 318,000-member American Postal Workers, solidly endorsed the pact and submitted it to a bargaining advisory committee for a mail ballot of all members.

Leaders of the two other postal workers unions also expected ratification, under their individual procedures, within a month.

Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar, commenting on the contract terms, said "the financial situation of the Postal Service is pretty grim," and predicted postal rates would have to go up this year.

Under the tentative agreement, an average $1,500 raise will be rolled into paychecks by the end of the second year. Cost-of-living adjustments every six months will provide for raises of one cent an hour for each 0.4 per cent rise in the Consumer Price Index.

In the contract that expired Saturday, the cost of living adjustment averaged more than $1,300 a worker per year.

The unions also preserved a no-layoff guarantee. The Postal Service had hoped to get rid of that clause in order to streamline some operations and cut down its payroll.

Chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr., called the 81 days of bargaining and negotiation "The toughest I've ever been in."

Bailar said the settlement struck "a proper balance" between the interests of the postal employees and the American public.

Senate kills hopes of Shapp nominees

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday defeated two Milk Marketing Board members and killed the administration's flickering hopes that Agriculture Secretary James McHale and Public Utility Commission Chairman Philip Kalodner would win confirmation.

Continuing its feud with Gov. Milton Shapp over important nominations, the Senate failed to reconsider the appointments of Kalodner and McHale, making official the votes last week to defeat them.

And the lawmakers, in bipartisan votes, defeated the nominations of Milk Marketing Board Chairman Peter Elish, of Canonsburg, 30-19, and board member Nina Gowell, of Pittsburgh, 24-25.

The nominees needed 34 votes to win confirmation.

The Senate last Tuesday defeated Kalodner by a 23-26 vote and McHale by a 25-24 vote but Majority Leader Thomas Nolan said later that the nominations would be reconsidered Monday.

Under the Senate rules, a defeated nomination can be reconsidered within two legislative days. Monday was the last day.

But Nolan said after Monday's session that it would have been futile to reconsider the nominations because neither Kalodner nor McHale picked up any support during the past week.

"Kalodner would have had even fewer votes this time than he had last week," Nolan said.

Small amounts should not be illegal

Panel urges Pa. 'pot' law change

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Governor's Council on Drug and Alcohol Abuse said Monday there should be no criminal penalties for possession of small amounts of marijuana in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Richard E. Horman, executive director of the council, asked the legislature to change the law so criminal penalties for possession are replaced by a $100 fine.

The council has been investigating attitudes on marijuana use in Pennsylvania for several months. Horman said the recommendation does not mean the state is endorsing the use of marijuana.

"The survey showed tremendous inequity in the prosecution of marijuana offenses," Horman said. "Someone in Philadelphia would not be prosecuted, while someone in Cumberland County most likely would be."

Horman said the civil fine of $100 may have more effect as a deterrent than criminal penalties. "If a kid knows he has to pay a $100 fine if he is caught, he may think twice before using the drug," he said.

"I am convinced in my own mind that the dangers of using marijuana do not warrant a criminal penalty. Casual use is not dangerous. We should be using a program of discouragement."

A number of states have already changed their criminal codes to provide civil fines for possession of small amounts of marijuana. Oregon has led the nation in the change in attitude toward marijuana use.

Horman said the council's proposal would not change the criminal penalties for selling or raising marijuana. It would only change possession penalties, which currently include a $500 fine or a 30-day jail sentence.

Horman said he has not talked with legislative leaders yet about the proposals. However, one powerful Democrat said if the matter reaches the House, it will provoke heated debate.

"I think there is a more tolerable mood in the House for a backup crewmember.

A U.S. flight controller said in Houston the rocket-cushioned touchdown, although on dry land, was softer than the ocean splashdowns of America's Apollos. In Moscow, a Soviet official laughingly told American correspondents they should stop referring to the Russian landing as a "thumpdown."

Advance notice of Russian space landings has never been given in the past, but Soviet reporters were on the scene this time. Cosmonaut chief Vladimir Shatalov said in Moscow the return of two Russian Salyut 4 spacelab pilots — expected in a few days — also would be shown on TV "if you insist."

Soyuz touched down at 6:51 a.m. EDT.

Apollo keeps on Truckin'

HOUSTON (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts, all but forgotten in the drama of Russia's first public space landing, studied the earth and the stars Monday from the orbiting Apollo where they hosted a pair of Soviet cosmonauts last week.

The international part of the mission that sent Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton into space was over, but the astronauts' chores were far from done. They will stay in orbit until Thursday to conduct experiments in solar astronomy, earth observation, space metals processing and biology.

"It's really an important science day," spacecraft communicator Robert Crippen told the astronauts shortly after they awoke.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton orbited the earth for the past six days along with Soyuz cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov. Soyuz returned to earth Monday while the Apollo crew was still asleep.

From the vantage point of their orbit 140 to 136 miles above earth's surface, the astronauts looked for a 100-mile-long oil slick off the Florida keys and tried to map the "red tide" of ocean organisms — prime food for deep sea fish — to help commercial fisheries along the U.S. East Coast.

They scanned the sky with a helium detector for clues about the nature of space around the solar system and searched with another instrument for extreme ultraviolet emissions.

United Parcel bombed

NEW YORK (UPI) — An explosion, apparently caused by a bomb, rocked the United Parcel Service building on Manhattan's West Side Monday night, injuring a dozen persons, one of them seriously, officials reported.

A Fire Department spokesman said the blast went off in a canvas dolly on the ground-floor loading garage of the UPS building.

The spokesman said the explosion "appears to have been caused by a bomb." He said fire marshals were at the scene to make a more definite determination.

Police at the scene said the explosion tore the clothes off one unidentified man and hurled him 30 feet across the loading bay.

Marriage made on Wall Street

ATHENS — Christina Onassis, one of the world's richest women, will marry Alexandros Andreadis, the son of a business tycoon, instead of the man who had been her companion for months, a member of the Andreadis household said Monday. He said the surprise wedding will take place at 7:30 p.m. (2:30 EDT) today in a small suburban chapel and that Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, widow of Christina's father, will attend. Miss Onassis, 24, earlier this year inherited the shipping and business empire of her father Aristotle Onassis. His fortune had been variously estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars. Miss Onassis has been expected to marry Peter Goulandris, scion of another Greek shipping family.

Percy Foreman indicted

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury late Monday charged well-known criminal lawyer Percy Foreman and two sons of the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt with conspiracy to obstruct justice in attempting to thwart an investigation of alleged wiretapping by the brothers. The indictment charged the defendants, who included three other attorneys and a retired industrialist, conspired to obstruct justice by offering witnesses money to go to prison and not testify about the wiretapping. One of the attorneys was charged with lying to the grand jury.

Serious crime on rise

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edward H. Levi reported Monday night that serious crime in the United States rose 18 per cent during the first three months of 1975 over the same period of 1974. Levi said the increase compared with a 15 per cent rise in crime in the first quarter of 1974 over the same period in 1973. The 18 per cent rise in the latest quarter was consistent with preliminary figures showing a 17 per cent increase for the full calendar year of 1974. Levi called the FBI's new crime report "one of the terrifying facts of life which we have come to accept as normal and which we must not accept as normal."

HEW head blasts welfare policy

SAN FRANCISCO — Outgoing HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger attacked the nation's welfare policy Monday and called for wholesale changes to save the nation from bankruptcy and get recipients back to work. In what he billed as his "farewell speech" as cabinet secretary, Weinberger said current welfare programs are threatening to destroy the nation economically, and they are not doing the job for which they were intended. He called for the immediate abolition of food stamps, aid to families with dependent children and supplementary income allowances, and said they should be replaced by a cash grant based on income and a "strong work requirement." "We are creating a massive welfare state that has intruded into the lives and personal affairs of our citizens," he told San Francisco's Commonwealth Club.

Refugees want welfare aid

SAN DIEGO — More than half of the approximately 1,500 Vietnamese refugees that chose to resettle in San Diego County have applied for some form of welfare assistance, an official said Monday. Felix Rusnak, assistant county welfare director, said 848 individuals had applied for the assistance, including 14 pregnant mothers, and that 360 had been granted aid. He said a small number were refused aid for having what was termed an adequate income. Rusnak said state figures showed 8,300 Vietnamese refugees released to California sponsors since the relocation began.

Cher, hubby hold encounter

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Television star Cher and her husband, rock star Gregg Allman, have finished a five-day "very personal encounter" here in a "needed respite from the intense publicity which ordinarily attends them," Allmans attorney said Monday. The couple, separated nine days after their recent marriage.

Nixon's relative 'tells all' to mag

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon viewed Watergate dispassionately as something "that was happening down the street" and in his last days as President sought not advice from his family but reassurance he was loved, David Eisenhower said Monday.

He said Nixon, like Lyndon Johnson before him, was driven from office for "noncompetence" — inability to handle a crisis he bit Vietnam or Watergate.

Eisenhower, married to Nixon's older daughter Julie, also said the former President "was in awe of the presidency" and loved to share it with those close to him, somewhat like a child with a new toy.

"Mr. Nixon had a trait of being almost boyish about the presidency," Eisenhower said in an interview in the August issue of McCall's magazine. "He had a hard time believing where he was. He was so excited about it that he shared it with me, almost carelessly. He invited you to be a decision maker, to play the game."

But he said Nixon was "careful" about others with whom he shared the office — almost always restricting it to H.R. Haldeman, Henry A. Kissinger, John D. Ehrlichman and John N. Mitchell.

Eisenhower, the namesake grandson of another, more popular President, said the Watergate tapes show Nixon was "not very realistic" about the scandal. He picked a Feb. 28, 1973 tape as an example.

"It's kind of the old view, well, this is a public relations problem," he said. "The idea that Watergate involved issues that would bring down the administration was the farthest thing from his mind."

As the crisis deepened, he said, Nixon discussed Watergate with the family only in abstract, analytical terms. "(He) spoke of it, well, in a kind of third-person way, as if it was something that was happening down the street," Eisenhower said. "He invited us to discuss it on that level, rather than getting down to the basics — which were that Watergate, from March, 1973 on, challenged Nixon's moral and personal qualifications for the presidency."

He said Julie "didn't have all the Watergate facts" and that her outspoken defense of her father "was human, not political." He described the final days in the Nixon White House as "an emotional period."

Ex-aide defends JFK before CIA probers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Theodore J. Sorensen, a former top aide to President John F. Kennedy, said Monday Kennedy never knew of, authorized or condoned any assassination plots against foreign leaders during his administration.

Sorensen, who served as special counsel to Kennedy, told reporters after testifying under oath before the Senate Intelligence Committee:

"It was very clear to me that at no time did the president know of, or authorize or condone any assassination plot against any foreign leader at any time."

Sorensen was asked principally about alleged plots against Cuban leader Fidel Castro but in answer to questions included the assassinations of Dominican dictator Gen. Rafael Trujillo and South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem.

He said to his knowledge

Voting rights law debate expected to be bitter fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate succeeded Monday in limiting debate on a proposed 10-year extension of the voting rights law which is due to expire Aug. 6. But delaying tactics by Southern senators threatened to drag out the bitterly-fought issue for days.

Crushing a threatened filibuster by southerners, the Senate voted 72 to 19 to limit debate on the motion to consider the House-passed bill which would permanently ban all voter literacy tests of all kinds.

Then on a 63-13 vote, the Senate formally took up the bill itself and Democratic leaders immediately filed a second cloture petition to limit debate. A vote on that cloture motion was set for Wednesday.

Calling for "an end to Reconstruction," the bill's arch foe, Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., unsuccessfully tried to make the New Hampshire election dispute the pending business in an effort to delay consideration of the bill but was prevented on a roll call vote.

Allen, a master of the Senate's rules and a veteran of filibuster fights, tried at one point to require that a routinely received message from President Ford to the Senate be read but lost that request on an 87 to 0 vote.

Other members of the once-powerful southern old guard such as Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., called the voting rights law a "capricious absurdity."

Supporters got 12 more votes than the 60 they needed to put a limit on debate.

Philly to N.Y. train runs halted by record rain fall

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Train service along the New York-Philadelphia corridor — the heaviest traveled in the nation — was severed here Monday and nearly 600 persons were forced from their homes by record rains and flash floods.

The Penn Central railroad said rail traffic through the area is not expected to be restored until Wednesday.

More than 100 commuter and long distance trains running between Philadelphia and New York were canceled and about 50,000 daily riders abandoned after the Assumpink Creek poured onto the Penn Central station tracks.

The tracks, which run alongside a branch of the Assumpink, were under 8½ feet of water at 11 a.m. Monday when the creek crested at 18 feet — higher than in 1971 when Tropical Storm Doria lashed the area.

Rails were still covered by 7½ feet of water at 2 p.m. and the creek was receding very slowly.

Two Silverliner passenger trains and a lengthy freight train were stranded in the sloshing muddy water that reached the tip of the platform. The parking lot became a 300 foot wide lake and cars were submerged to their rooftops.

"It doesn't look good. If we move a train over those tracks Tuesday — even if it's late in the afternoon — we'll be lucky. Look's more like it'll be Wednesday before we'll be in operation," said Tom Hoppin, a Penn Central spokesman.

"Work crews have to examine signal boxes, relay switches and a multitude of electrical controls," he explained. "And all those are inundated with sedimentation and debris. And we don't know if the track structure has been damaged."

Commuter service through the corridor ended early Monday after a New York train partially derailed on the Trenton tracks at 1:40 a.m. Passengers were transferred to the two lead cars and taken to Philadelphia.

By 10 a.m. commuters travelling between Boston and Washington were stranded when Amtrak said it was unable to charter enough buses to transport the people through the northeast corridor past the flooding.

Other long distance routes canceled included New York to Florida, Kansas City and Chicago, and Washington to Montreal. The only service leaving Washington late Monday was a Metroliner to Philadelphia.

Local service between New York and Princeton Junction and between Philadelphia and Bristol, Pa., was normal. Bristol is just across the Delaware River near Trenton.

The Assumpink, which flows into the Delaware River, was already swollen from a week-long deluge of 6.03 inches that ravage New Jersey's central lands. Monday's flooding, which resulted after a record 6.11 inches of rain was dumped in a 10-hour period, was considered the worst in Trenton's since 1955.

Tocks supported, rejected

TRENTON, N.J. — Supporters of the Tocks Island Dam project got both good and bad water news last week.

The Society for Environmental Economic Development (SEED) predicted water in the proposed dam's reservoir would have a superior quality if the environment is protected.

SEED, a coalition of labor and industry groups, disagreed with environmentalist groups which had claimed the water would become seriously polluted.

The organization claimed the water quality would be comparable to lakes in the area even if nothing were done to protect the river.

Also however, Bucks County Commissioners voted unanimously to oppose the project because of alleged discriminatory water rates and unanswered technical questions.

Commissioner Chairman Joseph Catania claimed Bucks County would have to pay more for water than New York and New Jersey according to present rates.

Catania also claimed there are other alternatives for flood control than building the dam.

Planning commission member Jeanne Schlesinger told commissioners that final reports on the project don't indicate clearly how county flooding would be affected.

Schlesinger also told commissioners it is possible the project may have an adverse effect on water quality.

The commissioner's views will be presented at a hearing next week in Philadelphia.

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter

How many people are aware of the entrapment story? Riding around my coverage area, several weeks ago, I became aware how simple it really can be.

It also made me wonder how many parents may not be aware of the danger of entrapment for their children.

In several different areas I saw abandoned or used refrigerators or freezers for sale. As harmless as they may appear, an unused or abandoned refrigerator or freezer poses a hazard to a child.

Your children trust you to protect them from entrapment in these potential death traps.

In recent studies by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, it was made clear that victims are usually children from two to 12 years of age, three-fourth range from three to six years old.

Twice as many boys as girls become entrapped and often playmates are trapped together.

To children playing near by, such abandoned appliances become a playhouse, a hiding place, or a "jail" to lock-up "outlaw" playmates.

A child isn't aware that a refrigerator is constructed to be airtight. He doesn't know the danger, he doesn't know what suffocation means. But you do.

Only a limited amount of air remains, once the door swings shut. The child panics, screams, and pounds on the door, quickly using up the small amount of oxygen.

His first cries and pounding can't be heard because of the heavy insulation. Death can come in a matter of 10 to 15 minutes.

Not just parents, but all persons of any community should be aware of these potential death traps and take action before some child's life is lost.

If you have, or ever will have, an out-of-use refrigerator or freezer, you can prevent a tragedy.

The refrigerator and freezer manufacturers caution: Parents, supervise your child's play, teach your child about the dangers of playing in these appliances.

All persons — before you store or discard those appliances, seal it, block it open with something a child cannot remove, or better still remove the doors.

If you find a temporarily stored or discarded appliance, even one sitting out for sale, make sure it is safe from children's temptation to play in it.

Make arrangements to have the discarded appliance removed and destroyed immediately so no child's curiosity is attracted.

If the appliance is to be taken away and can't be done immediately, take the necessary time to remove the door, it only takes a moment with a screwdriver. It's better to be sure than sorry.

If the appliance is to be placed in the basement or garage, or set out for sale, rubber bumpers or wooden blocks can be used to prevent the door from closing completely.

You can chain and padlock or tape the door closed, or remove or modify the latch.

It is advisable, as an extra precaution to leave shelves in the refrigerator.

These procedures are simple if you follow them. The story can be different, you may save a child's life.

Pocono Mountain workers spend where they earn it

STROUDSBURG — Most workers in the seven-county Northeastern Pennsylvania area don't travel very far to earn or spend their money.

According to a report released by the Office of State Planning and Development, 98 per cent of the workers whose jobs are in Northeastern Pennsylvania also live in the area.

For most counties, this means money earned in an individual county will be channeled back into that county's economy.

Out of the seven-county area, Monroe County has 89 per cent or 15,913 persons living and working in the county, while Pike County has the smallest in-county resident work force — 50 per cent or 2,025 persons.

In contrast to Pike's low percentage, Lackawanna County has the largest resident work force of 90 per cent.

The report states the level and type of industrialization in a county partially determines the percentage of the residential labor force. Lackawanna has a greater percentage of residential labor than Pike because of its greater industrial base.

Pike County's industries are on the edge of the northeastern region, drawing workers from contiguous, yet non-regional areas. The report states the closer to the center of the region an industry is, the more regional workers it is likely to draw.

Two trends are pointed out in the report that show workers from Lackawanna finding jobs in Monroe and Pike counties.

A total of 1,572 Lackawanna residents work in Monroe, while 124 Lackawanna residents have found jobs in Pike.

The work trend from Lackawanna to Monroe is attributed primarily to the Tobyhanna Army Depot located in Monroe County. The report says the latter trend might be caused by a sizeable percentage of Pike County business establishments located along Lake Wallenpaupack which is about 15 miles from the Lackawanna County line.

The number of Monroe residents who work in Lackawanna total 91. Only 41 Pike County residents work in Lackawanna.

New hearing planned on Eldred addition

BRODHEADSVILLE — Residents of the Pleasant Valley School District will have a chance to comment on a proposed addition to the Eldred Elementary School on Aug. 11 when the district's board of education holds a special public hearing.

The hearing is required by

DER panel reaches farmers

HARRISBURG — The Department of Environmental Resources has named an Agricultural Advisory Committee to strengthen its lines of communication with the farming community.

In appointing the committee, Secretary Maurice K. Goddard said some farmers have been misinformed or are confused regarding environmental protection regulations which relate to farming, giving rise to misunderstandings and false interpretations.

He said the purpose of the new committee would be the following:

- To serve as a consultative body concerning environmental rules, regulations, policies and procedures relating to agriculture.
  - To suggest educational and information programs to meet the needs of the agricultural community and the public at large.
  - To assist in maintaining communications between the department and the agricultural community.
- Named to the group were the senate and house majority and minority leaders of the agricultural committee, Ted Fairbanks of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union.

state Act 34 when the cost of building school additions or buildings exceeds original cost estimates by eight per cent or more.

The board tabulated bids for the project last week and found the construction cost of $688,748 was about $90,000 more than it originally estimated. An estimate of $595,000 was filed with the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

As explained by bond counsel Richard Wood of Harrisburg, the hearing will give residents a chance to ask questions about the addition and air their views, but will not halt the project.

The hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 11 in the cafeteria of the Pleasant Valley High School, Brodheadsville.

After the hearing and the bond sale, the board can award contracts for the addition of six classrooms, a kitchen, cafeteria to the elementary school in Kunkletown.

A bond issue of about $805,000 can be closed a week after the hearing, and notices to contractors to proceed with construction can be sent by the school board around Sept. 18.

Board members would like construction completed by the end of Jan. 1976.

Released at the meeting were details of the costs of building the addition. Costs are construction, $688,748; architect's fees, $37,881; equipment, $40,000; legal fees, $12,500; bond discount, $16,100; contingency fund, $59,150, and printing and rating of the bond issue, $3,500.

Since the district is expected to earn $20,889 in interest by investing proceeds of the bond sale to L.F. Rothschild and Co. of New York City, the size of the bond issue is reduced to about $805,000.

Chinese feel they have good reason to fear Russia

EDITOR'S NOTE: William E. Giles was a member of a 20-man delegation from the American Society of Newspaper Editors which recently completed a 24-day, 4,350-mile tour of the People's Republic of China. He is an executive of Dow Jones, Inc. This is the second of a six-part series on the trip.

By WILLIAM E. GILES

Dow Jones — Offaway News Service

PEKING — Chairman Mao Tse-tung is 82 and ailing. Premier Chou En-lai, 77, has been hospitalized for months. In the absence of these two Chinese leaders, the day-by-day affairs of the People's Republic are being handled by a younger, tenacious man named Teng Hsiao-ping.

Teng is Vice Premier, and, at 71, he's a prime example of redemption in China's power circles. Under severe personal attack during the Cultural Revolution (1966-69), Teng was forced into obscurity for six years. He suddenly reappeared last year, apparently none the worse for wear.

Teng is about five feet, broad-shouldered and quick-witted. Sitting in a reception room of the Great Hall of the People, Vice Premier Teng responds easily to a barrage of blunt, American-type questions. His answers made little news, but his authority and directness mark him as a China leader to watch.

On sensitive issues in the U.S., like Indochina and Korea, Vice Premier Teng was careful and temperate. He said he would, of course, talk with President Ford during his forthcoming visit here on any question, but he did not see much to discuss over Indochina. He said he thought it was good the U.S. was relieved of that burden so it could now pay more attention to what he considers the greater threat of Soviet aggression.

The Vice Premier reiterated China's support of North Korea for the "sovereign and peaceful reunification" of the entire peninsula — under Communist rule, of course. But he said it is such a mild, matter-of-fact way that the statement carried no hint of hostility or no encouragement to the North Koreans.

Teng spelled out a foreign policy that laid emphasis on political stability in Asia and increased wariness of Soviet moves in other parts of the world.

How can the Soviet threat not be taken seriously, Teng asked. As he sees it, Russia is at least approaching the U.S. in nuclear weapons capability and is stronger than the U.S. in conventional military strength. He figures the Russians have made gains in Europe, the Persian Gulf area, the Indian Ocean and the Pacific region.

The Chinese leader, puffing on a Panda cigaret, says China believes there is danger of a new world war and it emanates from moves toward "hegemony" — dominance over other nations — by both the U.S. and Russia. Today, however, he adds, the main danger comes from the Soviet Union which, in his view, has taken a strategic offensive stance while the U.S. is in a defensive posture.

Teng's concern over Russia is widely shared by Chinese officials who seem to have a visceral reaction to their erstwhile comrades in Moscow who split with Peking in 1960. They almost never mention Russia by name; it's usually referred to in a sneering way as "our friend to the North."

Historically, China's leaders have followed political strategies of keeping potential foes divided, playing one off against the other. Thus, the thrust of the current campaign to assail the U.S.-Soviet detente fits into a traditional pattern of Chinese foreign policy.

U.S. analysts in the Far East believe, however, the Soviet-Sino antagonism is bone deep and the rivalry between the two Communist powers is likely to increase, especially in Southeast Asia.

Vice Premier Teng insists the only way to counter Russia is to build up power. As he put it, the Russians bully the weak, but fear the strong.

The Pocono Record

Spurious honors can do harm

Something we've long suspected has been borne out by The Record's series of articles on those "Who's Who" volumes that purport to list top students and teenagers throughout the nation: They're phony.

It's all of a piece with the so-called "grade inflation" that has rendered the once-coveted Dean's List honor rolls all but useless for determining those students who are truly superior in their academic accomplishments.

You begin to suspect something's wrong when you get flooded with reports of students named to Dean's Lists and young people named to various Who's Whos. Considering the dropping enrollment in the nation's colleges (as is average) the only explanation seems to be that young people are more intelligent today than they were a few years ago.

Surveys taken by a number of universities, several state education departments and the federal government, however, indicate that this isn't the case. It's just that competition for graduate school is so great now that professors are reluctant to grade harshly. The As and Bs are flowing like water. And too often, they are unearned, if you apply the standards of a few years ago.

Who does this practice hurt? Everyone. The truly superior student loses his distinction. The average (but apparently superior) student has a record he cannot maintain once he does get into graduate schools, where high standards have been maintained for the most part. And the eventual employer of these students has lost one means of determining the quality of the people he hires.

As far as the Who's Whos are concerned, the people hurt there are the gullible — and proud and vain — parents, grandparents and students who fall for the line and wind up with $18 to $24 worth of books that lists perhaps one name they're interested in . . . and thousands of others of no worth or value whatsoever.

One of the slickest pressure tactics these Who's Who companies exert is to have a release published in the local newspaper. The Record has been an unwitting accomplice in this area for some time. But no more. We will no longer print those Who's Who releases.

There are genuine honors lists and other awards handed out to local students who have distinguished themselves academically, and we will be happy to print them. But the often spurious "honor" of being listed in a mammoth and useless directory will no longer be recognized here.

Bicentennial theme

By RAY PATTON

Besides the new issues commemorating the bicentennial of the United States released by our post office, many other countries are issuing stamps to commemorate our bicentennial.

Many collectors are using this theme as a Topical Collection trying to secure all stamps from as many countries as possible on this topic.

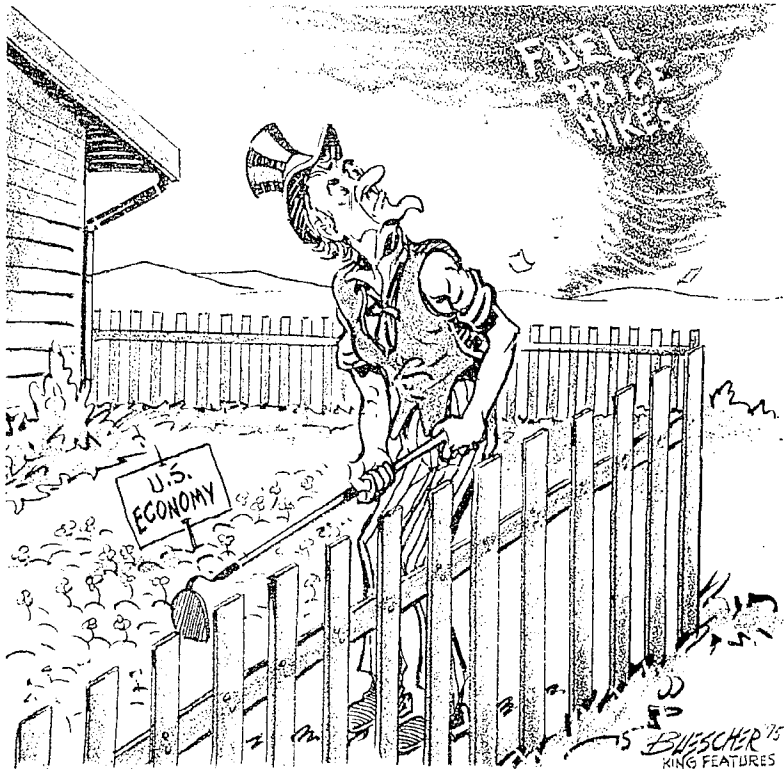

Several of the new-issue companies will supply these, so that one may have a complete collection of stamps all relative to the bicentennial. It is interesting, to note that few if any of the British Commonwealth countries are commemorating this event, at least so far none have scheduled any issue.

Canada is still working on their Olympic stamps and will release three semi-postals Aug. 6 for Olympic Combat Sports an 8 plus 2 Fencing; 10 plus 5 boxing and a 15 plus 5 judo. These will assist in raising funds for the Olympics.

Club news

The officers will meet at Herman Sibum's house Tuesday, July 29, at 8 p.m. to plan the activities and meetings of the Pocono Mountain Stamp Club for 1975-76.

Clean-out time

(Last of seven columns)

Sylvia Porter

Mid-year is a typical time for trying to clean out your overflowing files of old tax returns and records. This also is a typical time to make mistakes you may bitterly regret in the future.

You don't have to keep tax records forever (one elderly reader wrote me she had returns dating back 29 years and asked if she might "dare" throw the oldest away.) The tax law does not mention any specific time for keeping records but merely cautions: "Any person subject to tax shall keep such permanent records as are sufficient to establish the amount of gross income, deductions, credits . . ."

With this to go on, what possible guidelines should you follow? Here's a rule of thumb:

Keep your old tax returns and supporting documents for 10 years. In short, now that you have filed your return for the 1974 year, you can throw away your tax papers for 1964 and earlier years.

But why, since your return is open to review by the Internal Revenue Service for only three years, should you keep your records for 10 years?

Because, as Prentice-Hall explains, while the IRS has three years — until April 15, 1978 — to audit your 1974 return and assesses you for extra tax, it can examine your return after the three years have elapsed.

For instance, if — for some reason, such as an honest misreading of the tax law — you report less than 75 per cent of your gross income, you can be reviewed for six years after your filing due date. Or if the IRS alleges fraud, there's no time limit at all — and you may be assessed for additional tax, plus interest and penalties, at any time.

There also are other major reasons for keeping your tax records longer than three years.

(1) Income averaging. For this major tax saver, your old tax returns are essential. To check whether you will qualify for the income averaging break in '75, you need copies of your 1971-1974 returns. To qualify for '75, your taxable income for this year must exceed 30 per cent of your total taxable income for the four preceding years by more than $3,000. Vitally important, virtually all income — including the taxable half of long-term capital gain, bonuses, profit-sharing payouts, and income from gifts and inheritances — can qualify. What you do about shifting income in the remaining months of the year well may determine whether you will be eligible for this big tax break.

Property records

(2) Property records. Hold records that relate to the cost of property (stocks and bonds, your house, jewelry, etc.) until you sell the property. To be safe, keep the records at least 10 years after the assets show up on your return. Among the ways these records can help cut your tax bill are:

You will pay the absolute minimum tax when you sell. Your taxable profit (or deductible loss in the case of securities) can be proved to the penny. And there are other property-related costs — lawyers' fees, brokers' commissions, fixing-up expenses — that cut the tax on the sale of your house. But you must have receipted bills, canceled checks, other documents to prove the costs.

You will get maximum theft and casualty deductions. If your jewelry is stolen, your boat wrecked in a storm, etc., you can deduct your uninsured loss in excess of $100. But you have to prove ownership and the amount of loss. This means having records — sales slips, canceled checks, appraisals.

You will get top depreciation deductions. If you take depreciation deductions for part of your house for the office work you do at home, you need records to back up your depreciation.

Now is the time to get your records in order. If you have lost an old return or document that was ever filed with the IRS, write the IRS Service Center where you filed your return, identify the return or supporting document you want copied, include evidence that you are the individual who filed the return. There's a small copying charge.

Wicker's unreal world

Jeffrey Hart

If you don't get to Washington, D.C., all that often, you can nevertheless step through the looking-glass into the unreal world of District of Columbia chic liberal opinion by perusing the New York Times columns of Tom Wicker. They possess considerable anthropological interest, though it would be difficult to imagine anything less in touch with American political reality. Idi Amin would be much more reliable.

Back in 1972, Wicker went through the Presidential campaign confidently expecting a huge protest vote of some kind to materialize behind George McGovern, and maybe even sweep him into the Oval Office. The kids, the blacks, the women, the gays, the grape-and-lettuce boycotters, Dan Berrigan and Cesar Chavez — that was Wicker's idea of the nascent new American majority. A Secretary of Defense wearing granny glasses. A Secretary of the Treasury wearing a Trotsky beard.

As the weeks went by and McGovern sank even lower in the polls, Wicker took to publicly scratching his head and wondering why the big McGovern vote had not materialized. Somehow George was failing to communicate.

Reflected consensus

Wicker's assumptions regarding McGovern no doubt reflected the consensus of Washington's chic liberal salons, where everyone was telling everyone else what a marvelous candidate McGovern was, and how he was on top of all the key issues with his income redistribution schemes, and so on. And, in fact, McGovern did carry the District of Columbia — so Wicker's perceptions, though limited geographically, did have some validity.

Between elections, Wicker immersed himself in a burning mainstream issue, the prison revolt at Attica. He even produced a book about it. Attica was a big deal among chic liberals, but outside that limited milieu all it amounted to was a minor political push for Nelson Rockefeller, who ordered the revolt crushed.

Wicker was also deeply stirred by the death of convict George Jackson during an attempted prison breakout. Jackson, a naive Maoist, Wicker described as a "profound" political thinker.

Now Presidential election time is rolling around again, and here is how Wicker sees the issues shaping up for 1976. President Ford "has made it plain he thinks unemployment builds character, tax breaks for big business trickle down to the masses, and nothing needs to be

Army's Tinker Toys

Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — If ever a Pentagon project cried for an official investigation, it is the Army's swimming trucks that sink. Now, it turns out, even on dry land they lurch about so violently that drivers feel like throwing up.

In military jargon, the trucks are known as "GOER vehicles." Each consists of a diesel engine tractor which pulls an eight-ton carbo body, a 10-ton wrecker or a 2,500-gallon tanker.

There are 836 of these clunkers presently in the Army inventory, and the brass hats are planning to purchase another 464. Cost to the taxpayer: a staggering $90 million.

The GOER was developed by and purchased from the Caterpillar Tractor Company. It was designed to be a rugged, battlefield-worthy truck with a "floating and swimming capability for crossing canal water barriers."

But military test drivers maneuvered the trucks into Maryland's Chesapeake Bay and found themselves in water above their ankles. On one occasion, according to internal test reports, a GOER pulling a tanker unit "swamped and sank."

One report cautioned that "the vehicle (should) be prohibited from swimming until deficiencies . . . are corrected." If they are to be taken into the water, it counseled, only "well-trained and experienced driver personnel" should be used.

Presumably, he meant the drivers should be Red Cross-certified swimmers.

The same batch of tests turned up dozens of other shortcomings, including problems in the brakes, steering system, alternator, transmission, front axle and tractor frame. The personnel heater didn't work, and "the high noise level in the cab" was a "health hazard to both the driver and co-driver."

Last December, a unit at Ft. Hood, Texas, conducted additional tests on the GOER. Compared with three other "high mobility" vehicles, it came out looking like a Tinker Toy.

A draft test report, stamped "DISTRIBUTION LIMITED," cites these results:

— In one tactical exercise "along a dirt tank trail . . . averaging 25 miles per hour . . . all vehicles kept up . . . except the GOERs which fell 25 minutes behind within 7½ miles. When the GOERs caught up with the waiting column, their crews were suffering from motion sickness and requested to continue on the paved road."

— "The harsh ride qualities . . . were severe enough in many cases to cause loss of complete control of the vehicles. The drivers would bounce vertically and be thrown from side-to-side with such force, velocity, and frequency that their feet could not be kept on the throttle and/or brake."

done for the disadvantaged and the poor except to veto spending bills. He looks more like Herbert Hoover every day, and he is even doing the Democrats the splendid favor — with the Mayaguez incident and his swollen defense budget — of shouldering the "war party" onus."

Higher in the polls

No wonder Wicker thought McGovern was a great candidate. He thinks the Mayaguez "incident" was a plus for the Democrats! Ford's handling of the Mayaguez rescue raised him 11 points in the polls instantaneously, and is probably still earning him political dividends. Before Mayaguez, Ford was perceived as a bumbling Congressman; after it, he was a President. And since Mayaguez, Ford has been opening ground between himself and both Ronald Reagan and the Democratic opposition. Mayaguez, however, wasn't very popular in chic liberal Washington.

Wicker also apparently thinks that a lot more spending on "the disadvantaged and the poor" would be great Presidential politics, and that Ford is vulnerable because he isn't doing enough in that vein.

That, of course, is Washington liberal orthodoxy. In such circles, you meet a goodly number of HEW officials, impatient with their $120 billion budget.

In the rest of the country things are perceived a bit differently. Ford's vetoes are generally popular, since inflation and taxation are much bigger issues than unemployment. Out there in the United States of America, liberal governors in unlikely places such as Massachusetts and California are slashing programs and trying to fend off a middle-class tax revolt.

Wicker's line about Ford making it plain that "he thinks unemployment builds character" is a real howler, and no doubt breaks them up at liberal cocktail parties, where the ideal ticket would be Gene McCarthy and Ramsey Clark.

— The GOERs "exhibited very jerky motions in the hydraulically boosted yaw-steering system (causing) a potential safety hazard."

— "When the vehicles are in all-wheel drive and the steering is yawed toward the limit, either left or right, the rear body tends to crawl over the front power unit . . . At least twice the driver involved felt in danger of tipping over."

In sum, the cantankerous contraptions "ranked at or near the bottom in virtually every area tested."

Indeed, the report recommended they be "returned to depot stock and held in strategic reserve" for use only "in extremely muddy environments."

Footnote: Army spokesmen insist their GOERs have met all the criteria for which they were designed and have "served well in use in the Army." The Ft. Hood tests, they said, were confined to "certain characteristics" and did not take into consideration other qualities of the GOER, such as its ability to swim.

Philippine Funeral: Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos refused to guarantee safe passage to the daughter and son-in-law of a dead former friend so they could accompany the remains of her father from the United States to the Philippines.

Eugenia Lopez, Sr., once Manila's most powerful press lord and a Marcos' supporter, went into exile here when Marcos became a dictator in 1972. He died of cancer begging Marcos to let his three sons in the Philippines visit him one last time.

Not only did Marcos deny the request, he refused to promise a safe return to the United States to Lopez's daughter, Presy, and her husband, Steve Psinakis. Thus, only Lopez's widow and a fourth, younger son went back to bury Lopez.

Picnic capers: For more than four months, U.S. marshals covered up the presence of an intruder at a picnic for sequestered jurors who were trying ex-White House aide John Ehrlichman and others for the break-in at Dan Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

The interloper was a marshal's wife who showed up at a July 4, 1974, outing for the jurors, an "improper contact" that is supposed to be reported immediately to the judge.

Washington field office marshals covered it up until Marshal Service Director William burn learned of it in late October. He notified judges, who notified defense lawyers, who notified the Attorney General, who notified the President.

Wanted: Patriotic prisoners

JOLIET, Ill. (UPI) — The bicentennial celebration has given Warden David Brierton of Stateville Penitentiary an idea for brightening some of those old gray prison walls.

If he can find a few patriotic inmates and pick up a $2,500 grant from the United States Bicentennial Commission, old Stateville may soon look like Old Glory.

Brierton plans to have inmates who have artistic skill — and who can be trusted outside the prison — paint an enormous American flag across its front wall facing Illinois Highway 7 in honor of the nation's 200th birthday.

About 400 gallons of paint would be needed for the concrete wall, which is two blocks long and 30 feet high, he said. Brierton's plan also would include painting the window trim and metal awnings of the prison's administration building with the patriotic colors.

A bicentennial spokesman said the commission is swamped with requests for funding, but Brierton's proposal was the first from a prison.

The 37-year-old warden, considered one of the nation's most innovative at a large prison, said the grant would pay the only expense — the paint.

The labor would be free, although, of course, the laborers would not.

Strikers may get overtime

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Thousands of social workers who participated in a three-week walkout were back at work Monday, but many faced overtime because of a backlog of paperwork.

"We've got no problems that we can't cope with," said Edward Finnegan of the Bureau of Employment Security. "The offices in Philadelphia are crowded and we've asked for volunteers to work overtime to clear up the backlog."

The Pennsylvania Social Services Union, with 10,000 members, and the Pennsylvania Employment Security Employees Association, with 2,000 members, went back to work after ratifying new contracts over the weekend.

Their strike began July 1. PSSU members work in the county boards of assistance, and PESEA covers workers in 116 Bureau of Employment Security offices.

Welfare Department officials reported that all boards of assistance in 67 counties were open for business. The strike had its greatest effect on the unemployment system.

The new contracts — while they didn't meet the amounts the unions were demanding — increase salaries by 12 per cent over the next two years. They also add eight cents an hour to Health and Welfare funds over the period.

Ford sorry about LSD death

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford met privately Monday with the family of Dr. Frank Olson and apologized on behalf of the government for the scientist's suicide after he was secretly given LSD by the CIA.

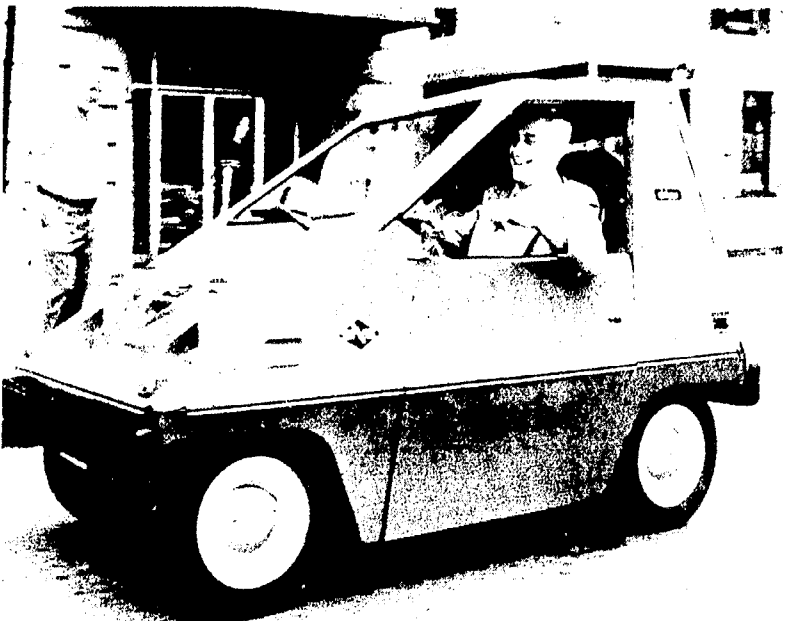

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford met in the Oval Office for 17 minutes with Mrs. Frank Olson and her three children, Mrs. Lisa Hayward, Niles Olson and Eric Olson.

The President expressed "the sympathy of the American people and apologized on behalf of the U.S. government for the circumstances of Dr. Frank Olson's death in November, 1953," Nessen said.

Olson fell to his death from a New York hotel room. The Rockefeller Commission which investigated the CIA said he was fed LSD without his knowledge and this led to his death.

Ford invited the Olson family to the White House and Nessen said the victim's family asked to be told all the facts concerning his death.

The President told the family he had instructed the legal counsel's office "to make information available to them at the earliest possible date," Nessen said.

ROAD TEST — Lt. Gov. Ernest P. Kline, chairman of the Governor's Energy Council, drives a new electric car on a downtown Harrisburg street Monday. Kline is making a two-week test of the car's usability for intra-city driving. The car has a range of 50 miles and a top speed of 38 m.p.h. (UPI)

Two more jurors picked for Joan Little murder trial

RALEIGH (UPI) — While demonstrators chanted and marched outside in the hot midday sun, two more women were picked Monday to be jurors in the trial of Joan Little, a young black woman accused of murdering a white jailer she says tried to rape her.

Mrs. Jule Hudson, 23, a white part owner of a natural foods restaurant, and Mrs. Annie R. Hunter, 66, a black tobacco worker, were picked at the start of the trial's second week.

Their selection brought the number of jurors picked to 10 — seven women, two of whom are black, and three men, one of whom is black. Two more jurors and five alternates remain to be chosen.

Nearly 100 demonstrators marched on the sidewalk in front of the Wake County Courthouse, chanting, "Drop the charges now. The criminal is dead."

Miss Little, a 21-year-old construction worker, is accused of murdering with an ice pick Clarence Alligood, 62-year-old jailer at the Beaufort County Jail in Washington, N.C.

She admits she killed Alligood, but claims he was stabbed to halt a rape attempt.

Alligood's body, nude from the waist down except for socks, was found in her cell.

Some of the demonstrators wore T-shirts that read, "Power to the ice pick." Their leader, Black Panther Larry Little of Winston Salem, N.C., no relation to the accused woman, cited the peremptory rejection of six blacks as jurors, accusing prosecutors of being racist.

Both of the women picked during the morning for the jury said they oppose the death penalty, the automatic sentence in North Carolina for a first degree murder conviction.

Mrs. Hudson, who wore blue jeans and a plaid shirt, said while she opposes the death penalty, she accepts it "as a fact of law."

Mrs. Hunter said is against capital punishment, "but if you done a thing, you ought to be punished for it."

All but two of the first 10 jurors selected said they oppose the death penalty.

Mrs. Hudson, whose restaurant, the "Irregardless Cafe," also employs Cornelia Howell, a young white woman who was the first juror chosen in the case, said she has formed no opinion on the guilt or innocence of Miss Little.

Mrs. Hunter said, however, "My opinion is she ain't guilty, but she killed him in self-defense."

Mrs. Hudson was asked whether she felt a sexually assaulted woman has a right to defend herself.

"It's my understanding that rape and murder are capital crimes," she said. "It would see to me fair to defend yourself from them."

Prosecutors used the sixth of their nine peremptory challenges to dismiss a black supermarket employee, Milton L. Horton, who said, "I think she's innocent."

Law urged to make lying crime for federal officials

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fifty House members proposed Monday to make it a crime for a federal official to lie.

Under the legislation, an official convicted of making a false statement could receive a sentence of up to 5 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., said the legislation was intended to provide equal treatment for private citizens and government officials.

Escrow interest law proposed

Pa. homeowners may get $$ break

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A growing number of home buyers who make monthly payments to lending institutions to cover property tax and insurance bills are collecting interest on their escrow money.

But that is not the case in Pennsylvania. In Maryland, New York and three New England states, home buyers obtaining mortgages through federally chartered savings and loan associations since June 16 will earn interest ranging from two per cent to passbook rate on their mortgage-escrow accumulations.

State-chartered savings and loans in all five states already paid escrow interest, and last May the Federal Home Loan Bank Board ordered federal S&Ls to comply with state escrow regulations. In addition to the two neighboring states, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Hampshire have escrow interest statutes.

Pennsylvania has no law directing payments of escrow interest, but legislation has been introduced in the General Assembly and some home buyers have sought a court remedy.

A $1 million class action suit in the Lawrence County Court seeks to recover for home buyers the amount a New Castle savings and loan earns on investment of their escrow accounts. Similar suits are also pending in Philadelphia and Allegheny counties.

Sen. Austin Murphy, D-Washington, sponsor of a bill to force Pennsylvania home mortgage holders using the escrow account system to pay two per cent interest, said "most home buyers don't understand that lenders have the use of their tax and insurance money."

"Lenders ought to pay something for the escrow money they hold."

A recent study by the U.S.

General Accounting Office showed banks and savings and loans collect $9 billion a year in mortgage escrow accounts.

Sen. Edward Zemprelli, D-Allegheny, chairman of the committee holding Murphy's bill, favors a capitalization plan where a home buyer's escrow payments are applied to his mortgage balance 11 months a year and the tax-insurance bills are added to his mortgage balance in the twelfth month.

"Under capitalization the consumer gets the benefit of the total amount he pays monthly because his interest is always based on the unpaid balance," Zemprelli said.

Edwin Staudt, executive vice president of the Pioneer Savings Association of Bloomfield, Pittsburgh, said Pioneer, with $29 million in assets, has been using the capitalization system for more than two decades.

"Our calculations show a borrower paying 8.5 per cent interest over the full term of a loan could save one-quarter of a per cent interest," Staudt said.

The vast majority of Pennsylvania savings and loans, holders of $9.8 billion in residential mortgages, employ the escrow system.

Treasure hunt still on in spite of drownings

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — Treasure salvage operations on a sunken Spanish galleon resumed Monday while funeral arrangements were being made for three persons who drowned early Sunday when the salvage boat "Northwind" capsized and sank.

Bleth McHaley, vice president for Treasure Salvors Inc., said divers aboard the boat "Easy Living" went out to the salvage site at dawn and continued hunting for treasure from the "Nuestra Senora de Atocha," a Spanish galleon which sank in 1622 with $100 million in gold and silver aboard.

The Northwind, a 60-foot converted tugboat, had been the main working boat in the salvage operation until it filled with water, capsized and sank Sunday morning while 11 persons aboard slept. Three persons, including the boat's skipper and his wife, drowned.

None of the survivors of the Northwind incident took part in Monday's salvage operation, Ms. McHaley said.

The bodies of Dirk Fisher, 21, and his wife, Angel, 25, were flown Monday to Vero Beach, Fla., where funeral services will be conducted Wednesday. The body of the third victim, Rick Gage, 21, was to be returned to his hometown of Jamestown, N.Y.

Herbert Buzzard's paints express what he can't say

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Herbert Buzzard paints what he cannot say.

Buzzard, the victim of a massive stroke that left him speechless and paralyzed on his right side 14 years ago, uses his painting to portray a world he can no longer describe in words.

Buzzard began his painting for therapy. Today, he is preparing a one-man show which starts this weekend at the Antoine Dutoit Museum in Delaware Water Gap.

Buzzard himself is a native of the tiny borough and his paintings often illustrate scenes from the town — including a recent rendition of the Delaware Water Gap School.

An observer can see progress in the paintings Buzzard has finished since the start of his career. The colors, which have become brighter and almost surrealistic, are perhaps the most noticeable change.

Buzzard's first paintings were those in the "paint by number" kit his wife Mildred bought to test his ability to follow numbers and to steady his left hand, which had to substitute for his paralyzed right hand.

He began taking adult oil painting classes in 1967 at the Pocono Mountain Junior-Senior High School. His first "original" painting was a still life which took the entire 10 weeks of the course to complete.

He then went to adult classes at Stroudsburg High School and came under the tutelage of Fred Beaver. Beaver still encourages — and criticizes — the artist eight years later.

Herbert Buzzard at work.

Painting is not Buzzard's only therapy. After his stroke, he worked with three therapists at home to relearn such essential things as the alphabet and writing. He has also attended the East Stroudsburg State College Speech Clinic; he now continues his therapy at home.

With the methodical determination he had put into his woodworking and his trade as paper maker before his stroke, Buzzard paints slowly and tediously with much attention to detail. He has a particular interest in old buildings, such as Walters' College Shop at ESSC. The painting of the shop hangs in Mrs. Walter's home in Rhode Island.

Buzzard's interests are not confined to painting. He is an avid stamp collector and has added postage meters to his collection recently.

His work is done with his one good hand — his left.

Buzzard's paintings will be featured at the museum until Aug. 10.

Fuel adjustment pushes prices up

By PATRICIA FANNING

Dow Jones - Offaway News Service

Electric and gas utility rate increases caused by state fuel-adjustment regulations cost consumers an estimated $6.5 billion last year. That is more than the total rate increases approved in the preceding 25 years, according to a recent survey by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Sen. Lee Metcalf of Montana, both Democrats.

The survey reports that state regulatory commissions have been using fuel-adjustment clauses, originally created to relieve problems of "regulatory lag" caused by lengthy rate increase consideration, with greater regularity in recent years. The report found that fuel-adjustment clauses accounted for two-thirds of total price increases that were passed on to the consumers.

Flea collars

Plastic flea collars can kill cats, researchers in Pullman, Wash. have found. Four of 50 cats died in an experiment on the collars that utilized organic phosphate to kill fleas, said Dr. Keith Farrell, U.S. Department of Agriculture research veterinarian at Washington State University.

The collars give off a nerve gas that causes the animals' nervous system to deteriorate. The cats lose control of their rear legs and of urination and become short-tempered, perky, anemic, and dehydrated.

Only the dusting collars give off the gas, not the dusting collars that are also common on retailer's shelves. Although no experiments have been conducted with dogs, Farrell said the collars may pose dangers for smaller breeds.

Nutrition guide

Protein, riboflavin, thiamin, calcium — there is an easy way to determine how much of each is needed and how much you are getting. With a nutrimeter — a 70-cent device with arrows that move along a track for each major nutrient — you can keep track of how much you have consumed each day.

An accompanying pamphlet, "Nutrition labeling: Tools for its use" ($1.15), lists nutrient content for most foods. Also available are a student guide (30 cents) and a teacher's guide (25 cents) for the nutrimeter. All can be ordered from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Women need credit, too

Credit ratings are built from scratch

By LORA SHARPE

Family Fare Editor

STROUDSBURG — To many women, and especially married women, the world of credit is a sphere of confusion.

They know little about the complications of establishing credit and often prefer to simply let their husbands worry about the money.

Then, if death or divorce takes a spouse away, they find they do not know how to arrange credit — and may be refused credit because they have no rating of their own.

Under the law, lending institutions and stores cannot discriminate against women applying for credit. Women must be judged on the same standards as men asking for credit. A federal law to this effect goes on the books Oct. 28.

A credit rating is essential to good business by credit. A credit rating is reflected in a credit report, often prepared by a credit bureau when a person applies for credit.

Credit report

A report shows "one's habit of taking care of financial status," according to Gary Kaufman of the Credit Bureau of Monroe County.

The report includes such basic information as name, address, spouse, employer, wages, dependents, etc. It also includes all financial dealings that may affect a subject's ability and willingness to pay off borrowed money.

For instance, if John Doe goes down to a bank to borrow money to buy a car, he will tell the bank those places he has charge accounts or where he has borrowed money before.

The credit bureau, asked by the bank to report on Doe, will check with those stores and lending institutions Doe has done business with.

They will tell the bureau how quickly Doe repays his debts. The credit bureau records all this information in code and reports back to the bank, possibly with additional information already in Doe's record.

"A person makes his own credit rating," emphasized Kaufman. "All we do is gather the information."

Credit information is available only to members of the bureau, who must identify themselves by number when calling. The person investigated has a right to inspect his records: for a fee when he's only curious and for free when he has been refused credit.

A person's wages cannot be obtained by phone — the bureau will send a form to the employer.

If Doe has never borrowed money before or does not hold a charge account, he probably doesn't have a record at the credit bureau — so he probably doesn't have a credit rating.

Establishing credit

There are ways to establish credit.

First, advises Thomas Raugh, assistant vice president of Security Bank and Trust, get a charge account with some of the smaller area businesses for small purchases. Then, if you need to borrow larger amounts, head for a bank.

A customer may take out a small loan to establish credit by having a com-maker or colateral.

If the customer maintains a savings account and pays the usual house bills (electricity, heat), on time, his stature may rise in the loan officer's estimation.

A woman should begin to establish credit in her own right by securing charge accounts or paying the bills in her own name and with her own income.

The woman should insist that, if she is paying bills, a separate file be maintained at the credit bureau for her — not just as an accessory to her husband. Kaufman says today many women do this, unless she has no income of her own. If both husband and wife maintain separate ratings, one's credit should not affect the other's. When mortgaging a joint house, though, the two must sign the mortgage.

There are a lot of ways to ruin a credit rating. Kaufman cited having a court judgment entered against you or having a lien against your property as the worst things to have in a credit file.

Raugh named repossession as the worst and an unpaid bill (for anything) second. Judgments and liens came third.

However, six years after any credit default the slate is wiped clean, explained Kaufman.

Contrary to popular jokes, a person deeply in debt does not necessarily carry a good credit rating. If he makes less than he owes, says Raugh, he's a very bad credit risk.

Agriculture sec. confirms Pa. canning lid shortage

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's Secretary of Agriculture says there is a shortage of home canning lids in the state and he wants to know why, even if it takes a federal investigation.

Secretary James A. McHale reports that his office has been receiving an average of 200 letters a week complaining of a shortage of canning jar lids. If there isn't a shortage, reasons McHale, why is he getting so much mail?

McHale defies manufacturers' claims that consumers are hoarding lids. Hoarding, he says, is a result and not a cause of shortages.

The Department of Agriculture is investigating the supply situation through its Consumer Services Division. Reports indicate the shortage only in canning lids, not jars. In fact manufacturers fear being stuck with a surplus of jars, says the department.

"The game," says the secretary, "appears to be to unload jars by tying them with sales of lids." Lids sell for approximately 36 cents a dozen; jars for $3 a dozen.

McHale sees the shortage of canning lids thwarting a money-saving garden program pushed by the governor's office, the agriculture department and the welfare department. McHale claims — and figures might back him up — that many first-time gardeners got out in the sun and soil to plant vegetables and fruits to save grocery money.

Judging fabric

By DAWN OLSON
Asst. Home Economist
Cooperative Extension Service

A question frequently asked by home sewers is "how can I tell a good quality double knit fabric?" Price per yard is not a fair judging method. There are some guidelines you may find helpful. One major guideline is the label on the fabric bolt end, which includes:

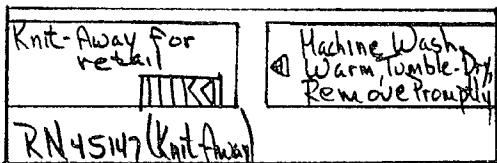

— Fabric Manufacturer's Name or "Retail Name": Certain retail chains put all fabrics on their own "bolts." In that case, look for the required registered number which identifies the actual fabric manufacturer.

— Fiber Type and Manufacturer: (Remember not all double knits are necessarily polyester; possibly acrylic, wool, cotton, blends, etc.)

— Care Instructions: Code required by federal law. If not visible, ask for them. Some companies supply detachable labels that can be sewn into the garment.

— Percentage of Shrinkage: Range should be indicated. All double knits should be pre-

Double knit quality test

Examples of retail name, washing labels laundered (just as the finished garment) to remove resins and insure minimum garment shrinkage.

— Width: Crosswise measurement — salvage to salvage. Double knits cut more economically because of their inherent wider width.

— Price: Set by retailer.

— Manufacturer's Style and Color Numbers: Used for reorder.

— Number of Yards-Bolt (optional): 12-15 yards-bolt standard when received.

— Date Fabric Received (optional): Indicates when fabric received at retail store.

Besides the bolt label, you can also do some "do-it-yourself" quality testing. How does the fabric feel when touched?

(Referred to as HAND) is the hand crisp, hard, plastic, soft or flimsy? Most double knits are finished with resin for crispness, and protection. Consequently, most will soften slightly when laundered which also increases sewability.

Another factor is the fabric weight in relation to quality. Logically, the more yarn used per yard of knit, the higher the fabric cost. However, the much-in-demand light weight knits require specialized knitting machinery and expensive fine denier yarn which also add to fabric cost. To inspect for uniform weight, hold a single thickness of fabric up to a bright light.

You should also do an in-store stretch and recovery test. To simulate wearing conditions, crush and stretch the fabric lengthwise and crosswise. A good double knit will not wrinkle excessively and will bounce back to its original shape.

Check for bad "bolt appearance." This includes excessive snagging, running, limpness, fading, etc. The color of the fabric should be even throughout the fabric. It should not be easily rubbed off. Check to see if the print is clear and free from streaking. Be sure a knit fabric is on grain and not bowed. A bowed knit is one which has been pulled off grain during processing and heat set (non-reversible).

Is the fabric guaranteed? This can be another sign of quality and satisfaction.

As a consumer, it's your responsibility to report any undesirable characteristics to the store from which you purchased. Remember, however, that fabrics sold as remnants or on special sales usually have the "as is" condition already discounted from the price.

Examining ecology

Endangered plants get little support

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — It is easy to become alarmed when ecologists tell us the bald eagle or the whooping crane is in danger of becoming extinct. The fear that these majestic creatures might vanish forever is enough to generate a national effort to fight for their survival. Sadly, though, there has been no such interest in efforts to save wild plants that are just as threatened. According to the Smithsonian Institution, about 2,800 of the 22,000 kinds of seed plants and ferns native to the United States are in danger. Fifteen of those are found in Pennsylvania. But it is easy to see why there is little interest nationally — and even less in Pennsylvania — in saving wild plants. Why should the public be concerned about the disappearance of a rare pond weed (Potamogeton perfoliatus) that most of us have never heard of and probably will never see? Can you imagine a chain of stores contributing one cent from the sale of soft drinks for the preservation of the mouse-eared chickweed, a tiny wildflower found only in a small section of Chester County? But many ecologists believe the preservation of the mouse-eared chickweed is just as — and maybe even more important than — saving the bald eagle. "A plant has the right to exist because it is there," said Paul Wiegmann, a naturalist for the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, a private group working to preserve the natural environment. Product of evolution "A plant is the product of millions of years of evolution and man, as one element of that environment, does not have the right to deprive the world of a species because he mismanages his environment." There is also a possibility, Wiegmann said, that a plant that is endangered today might be of great value to man at some time in the future. "Every object has answers in it, but in most cases we don't even know the questions yet and if we extinct a plant, we never will," he said. "If we had extincted penicillin, for example, we wouldn't have the wonder drug we have today."

The national effort to save rare and endangered plants has just begun. The Endangered Species Act of 1973 required the Smithsonian Institution to identify those rare and endangered plants and report to Congress on ways to protect them. The Smithsonian found that about 10 per cent of the plants are threatened and endangered and said the Interior Department should give those plants the same protection it gives endangered animals. Most of the plants on the Smithsonian list are in Hawaii, the South and West. Efforts to save Pennsylvania's rare and endangered plants, however, are going nowhere. A few conservation groups have purchased important wildflower areas, but the state has done virtually nothing. Legislation that would require the identification and protection of Pennsylvania's rare and endangered plants has been introduced in the Senate in the past two sessions, but has been blocked in committee. The Department of Environmental Resources opposes the bill on grounds that it does not have enough money to administer new programs such as this.

Few persons would recognize even the names of the 15 Pennsylvania plants on the Smithsonian list, with the possible exceptions of the white lady slipper and the Allegheny plum tree. Many more endangered But Wiegmann said that in addition to these 15 plants, there are many more in Pennsylvania that the state should consider rare and endangered. These are plants that may be abundant in other areas, but are scarce in Pennsylvania. "The snow trillium is a very common plant in the midwest, but it is rare and endangered in Pennsylvania," Wiegmann said. He said the first thing Pennsylvania should do is organize an effort to identify those plants that need protection because no one knows for sure how many there are. The best way to preserve plants is not to create wildflower zoos, where the plants are maintained in an artificial environment, but to protect the areas in which the plants grow naturally, Wiegmann said. Considering the legislature's opposition to virtually any land use bill, it is unlikely that the state will use land use control to preserve wild plants. A more practical answer is to purchase those areas where rare and endangered plants thrive. The conservancy, for example, bought land on which the blazing star — a beautiful wildflower more common in the prairie states — grows in abundance. Wiegmann said the state should protect wild plants against commercial exploitation. The Smithsonian found, for example, that 30 per cent of the nation's cacti are in danger because plant dealers are digging them up. Parts of the ginseng plant — which grows in Pennsylvania — bring a price of up to $40 per pound, Wiegmann said. One of the reasons wild plants are in danger is that man is destroying the areas in which they live. But "wildflower lovers" are a large part of the problem. Many orchids and lilies are in danger today because people have picked them extensively or have tried to transplant them into their home gardens. Most of these wild plants have very specific environmental requirements that are not understood or difficult to create. They should be left alone.

Army's not bragging about this enlistee

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — In the days of Gen. Braxton Bragg, the Army didn't have these problems. But four generations later, it is involved in a battle with David Bragg, 22, the great, great grandson of the famous Confederate general, that demonstrates in part how dramatically the Army has changed.

Bragg in a transfer. Though Bragg had said when he enlisted that he hoped some day to be a member of the Special Forces, he declined the 3rd's invitation. But around Christmas, 1973, he was sent to Ft. Meyer, Va., just outside Washington, to become a member of the infantry unit. "I was married and I couldn't afford the cost of living in Washington," he said. "My wife had to quit her job and by staying in the service, I would be in debt, and that would defeat the purpose of my joining in the first place."

As a recruit in the new, all-volunteer Army, Bragg signed a legally-binding "enlistment contract," which spells out what the enlistee can expect from the Army and vice versa. "We got into the whole spectrum of enlistment contracts with the advent of the volunteer army," said Lt. Col. Richard Brian, of the Army Chief of Information Office. "We rapidly found that the contract was the only guarantee."

It works to our advantage. It's an incentive to the individual. It guarantees that a guy can be a paratrooper or a frogman or whatever he wants. In Bragg's case, the enlistment contract did not work to the Army's advantage. Bragg enlisted through a recruiter in his hometown, Glenside, Pa., a well-to-do Philadelphia suburb, in February, 1973. "He asked me if I was any relation to Gen. Bragg," young Bragg said. "When I told him I was, his eyes sort of lit up. Phones started ringing and things started happening."

Young Bragg said he quit his job as an assistant bank manager and joined the military primarily to qualify for education benefits under the GI bill. Bragg decided he wanted to be a paratrooper. Naturally, he wanted to be assigned to Ft. Bragg, named for his famous relative, the closest base with an airborne division. He signed an enlistment contract, stipulating that he spend his basic training at Ft. Ord, in Monterey, Calif., and then 16 consecutive months at Ft. Bragg. When he had been at Ft. Bragg seven months, the 3rd infantry, one of the Army's top units, attempted to interest

Bragg "separated." Once at Ft. Meyer, however, he remembered that he had not signed a waiver contract at Bragg and looked up an Army regulation stating that non-fulfillment of enlistment contract was a grounds for "separation." Bragg was "separated" officially from the Army April 10, 1974. "Certainly we made a mistake," Brian said. "That's why we let him out." Bragg wasn't satisfied, however and he enlisted the help of the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors' office here in his fight against his Reserve duty commitment. Army regulations bind him to five years in the Reserves because he only served one year of active duty. Since his separation, he has been getting letters telling him to enroll into the active Reserves. His CCCO counselor, Cerina Charleston claims, however, that a Defense Department Directive, which supercedes an Army regulation, would entitle Bragg to an honorable discharge and exempt him from Reserve duty. She has sent the Pentagon a letter to that effect and was waiting for an answer. "When he (Bragg) signed his contract," Brian said, "his Army Reserve obligation was incurred."

"The Army does this all the time," Bragg said. "Enlistees don't know that there are laws that supercede regulations."

Some people are "string savers"... they NEVER throw anything away; and in many cases it is a blessing. What would our Sesquicentennial and Centennial's been if it hadn't been for the "let's put-it-away-some-day-we-just-might-want-it" ladies. However, this "thing" I am referring to won't be found in the attic... it's bigger than breadbox and if you've still got it, it's liable to be humming away right there in the kitchen or the pantry. It's your refrigerator!!!! Did you know we've turned into Sherlock Holmes and that we are conducting the "old refrigerator search"? Fascinating, it is too!! Pick up a registration blank in the appliance department of the new Plaza Shop and... regardless of the brand... list the make, model and serial number of your refrigerator. It MUST be in operating order... but the older, the better... and the prizes make the search VERY worthwhile!! First Prize is a NEW FRIGIDAIRE 17 cubic foot, frost free refrigerator; Second Prize... an Admiral AM-FM clock radio; Third Prize, a Frigidaire ice ejector bin with two flex quick ice trays and there will be 10 "consolation awards" of party cube trays. If'n your refrigerator is huffin' and puffin', YOU just might be the lucky one... so join the "old refrigerator search"... and look for the announcement of the winners on August 23rd!!

Yes... it's "summer time and the livin' IS easy," but at Wyckoff's we aren't taking the time to put out the hammocks!! We DO invite you to "sip and sup" under the trees in the Plaza, enjoying a repasse from the Snack Shack. We DO invite you to dine in air-conditioned comfort in our tearoom! We ARE previewing fall for "boyfriends" AND "girlfriends" of ALL ages in ALL of our fashion departments, AND SIDEWALK DAYS come along to brighten the scene in Stroudsburg this weekend! So come along!! The word IS "get into the swing of summer" by visiting Wyckoff's... 100 years young and still growing!

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Tricky in spots, day will demand close attention to details, efficient planning and good follow-through. Avoid making rash promises.
TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — The Taurus's obstinacy is legendary, but don't get into arguments now — especially with superiors. You'll come out a loser.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Shut no doors abruptly or you'll regret it. Such action is not like you but, on a challenging day such as this, you COULD step out of character.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — You are an innately cautious person, at times even too conservative, but with the unusual offerings likely to come your way just now, it would pay to be a bit more daring. Let yourself go!
LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Investigate all angles of any new proposition offered, but don't fear the unknown; just get better acquainted with its possibilities — or lack of them.
VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Persistence will be the key to advancing your personal plans. Keep trying and friends will rally 'round and give their support.
LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — If you have been planning any changes in your home or property, now is a good time to start making them. Family will not only approve — but will help.
SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Friends will be especially helpful now — especially in being able to supply some much-needed data. They will also be able to give you certain objective insights which will prove invaluable in the future.
SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — A good day for finalizing agreements. Some unusual background activity will provide the spark that hurries matters through more quickly than expected.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Take nothing for granted now and avoid jumping to conclusions. What seems a certainty could be otherwise. One more admonition: Don't try to force issues.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Routine and detail work will probably bore you now, so get busy on a creative project you've had in mind for some time. Influences stimulate original ideas.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — A better day for completing old projects than for beginning new ones. In leisure time, devote yourself to a creative hobby.
YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most idealistic of all Cancerians; progressive in your methods and usually far ahead of the times in your thinking. You would probably be unhappy in the world of business and commercialism for you tend to become disillusioned when pursuing strictly material goals.

The bidding:

South West North East
1 ♠ Dble Redble Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠

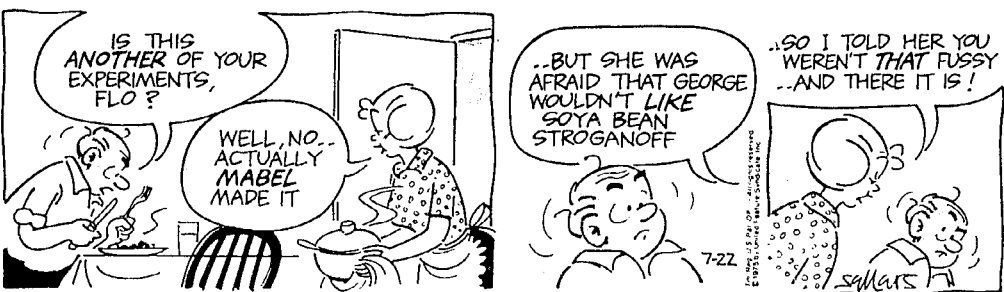

Opening lead — king of hearts.
The coup en passant is a relatively simple play by which an apparently certain loser is made to disappear. But, like many other so-called advanced plays, the term used to describe it is more frightening than the genuine article itself.

Let's say you're South and get to three clubs. The contract seems easy enough to make when dummy comes down, but when West starts out with the K-A and a low heart, which you ruff, and you lead the ace of clubs, the outlook changes drastically.

When West shows out, it seems you must go down one — losing two hearts, a diamond and two clubs. But actually, with careful play, you can save a trick and make the contract.
You play a spade to the king and ruff dummy's last heart, followed by a spade to the ace and a spade ruff. By this time you've won six tricks and have the Q-8 of diamonds and K-7-6 of clubs left.
You now play a diamond to the ace and lead dummy's last spade. If East discards, you ruff with the six to achieve your ninth trick. If East ruffs, you discard the queen of diamonds, thus combining a diamond loser and a trump loser on one trick and so making the contract.
This play of the last spade from dummy to score an extra trump trick is called a coup en passant. You score the trick while passing by East, who finds himself helpless in the matter.
In effect, you score the A-K of spades, ace of diamonds and six trump tricks on the hand — even though East scores his two natural trump tricks. Your sixth trump trick somehow sprouts out of thin air.

Antacid tablets weaken bones

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — If you take antacid tablets to head off heartburn, Dr. Herta Spencer recommends supplementing your diet with milk or meat to counteract the effects of antacids on bones.

She concluded in a paper presented to a recent meeting of the American Gastroenterological Association that three common antacids bought over the counter and containing aluminum hydroxide significantly decreased the amounts of phosphorous available for use by the body.

Milk or meat provide additional phosphorous.

Dr. Spencer, assigned to the Veterans Administration Hospital at Hines, Ill., studied 11 male patients in research under grants from the National Institute of Dental Research, National Institutes of Health and the National Dairy Council.

She said the study showed the males also suffered a loss of calcium from the body and retained less fluoride than normal when taking small doses of antacids.

"Prolonged depletion of these elements could adversely affect bone," she said.

The Spencer study supplemented 1968 research by Dr.

Myron Lotz, formerly of Georgetown University; Dr. Elias Zisman, formerly of the National Institutes of Health, and Frederic Batter of the National Institutes of Health.

They found that patients taking large doses of antacids for four months showed changes in phosphorous and calcium metabolism. As a result of the deficiencies, the patients suffered general body weakness, general discomfort, back pain and loss of appetite.

Dr. Spencer said it was significant she found distinct changes in mineral metabolism when her patients took only small doses of the aluminum-containing antacids. She said minerals normally are stored in bone and are withdrawn when needed.

Long-term calcium shortages, she said, can deplete bone and lead to such conditions as osteomalacia, softening of the bones marked by pain, and osteoporosis, more porous, fragile bones.

Interference of the antacids with the absorption of fluoride from the intestine, she said, is tampering with an essential trace element which is important in maintaining normal structure of bone and also is useful for making teeth more resistant to decay.

She suggested intake of calcium, phosphorous and fluoride in conjunction with use of antacids.

Surgery for protruding ears

Our son, 12, is becoming very self-conscious about his protruding ears. We are considering plastic surgery. Do you think this is a good idea?

Mrs. G.W., Mich.

Dear Mrs. E.: Parents frequently are reluctant to become involved in this type of elective surgery.

They look at their children so lovingly that it is difficult for them to conceive that anyone could be critical of the size of their children's ears.

Yet it does happen and the embarrassment that boys or girls feel when their ears "stick out" is great.

In this day of long hair, both boys and girls can cover their ears and avoid being teased about their ears.

When your son grows to maturity and the rage for long hair has disappeared, his mortification may be great. You can anticipate such a reaction, and give him the gift of plastic repair of ears. The gift will not only improve his physical appearance, but will also give your son psychological support and boost his morale.

The operation is a safe one. The results, with modern techniques, are most gratifying. Consult a plastic surgeon and find the ideal time to do this. The sooner this is done, the less likely is your son to be stigmatized, by himself or by his classmates.

Do you know what the phrase "heart hunger" means? Mrs. N.K., Ore.

Dear Mrs. K.: I have never heard this expression. Therefore, I can only speculate about its meaning.

Since the heart is a muscle, its function depends on an adequate amount of blood and oxygen.

In order to beat regularly and strongly, blood is brought to the heart muscle through the coronary arteries.

There is a condition known as "ischemic heart disease." This means that there is some obstruction of blood to the heart, making it impossible for it to be "nourished" and function properly.

This is probably what the term "heart hunger" implies.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Repeated attacks of "heartburn" deserve investigation in order to be sure that there is not some underlying condition that needs to be treated.

Bad temper

By Jean Adams

HURT: (Q.) I am 16 and have been married for a year and a half. My husband is 21 and we have a year-old son. My husband and I love each other very much. The problem is that he has a very bad temper. Whether he's drinking or not he gets mad over nothing and hits me.

The next day I have bruises and he's sorry. He says it won't happen again but eventually it does.

His parents drank and fought a lot when he was little. Do you think this has anything to do with his ways?

Help Needed in Alabama

(A.) What happened between your husband's parents is of lesser concern to me than what is happening to you. You are not only too young for marriage but you are being badly mistreated.

Please consider ending this marriage and starting anew. Your parents and your minister can help you to do so.

One big reason I am printing your letter is so that readers your age can see the danger of making wrong decisions at a time too early to decide on such major matters as marriage.

NAMES: (Q.) Barbara, this girl I know, had been going with Joe for about a month. Then one day he told one of his friends to tell her that she was a slut. So this friend did. I asked Joe if it was really true. He said yes.

Now all the boys are calling her names. I think Joe should at least have told her to her face. What should she do?

Hated in New Jersey

(A.) I have a feeling that Barbara is really YOU. That makes no difference. Whether she is you or another girl, she should completely ignore Joe from now on.

"Let me give you a piece of advice... never brag to a girl about how much money you have in your pocket!"

YOU ARE NOT ALONE.

When it comes to using electricity, local residents are not alone in their efforts to, "wait until eight."

Hundreds of businesses, industries, institutions and local governments are working hard at developing programs to reschedule their use of electricity to after 8 p.m.

For many of these companies and institutions it has involved some inconveniences and a substantial investment in dollars and man-hours in making changes necessary to achieve energy-management.

These business and community leaders know that their time and money is going to be well spent. In the long run they are going to end up saving money because their actions are helping to keep any future increases in the cost of electricity to a minimum.

Follow the example of some sharp business minds who know a good thing when they see it... try to reschedule some of your uses of electricity such as clothes washing, drying, dish washing and baking to after 8 p.m.

"It will pay to wait until eight!"

More park staffers sought

STROUDSBURG — Two additional full time employees are needed to run the fall and winter programs of the Monroe County Recreation and Park Commission, according to Jeffrey M. Evans, executive director.

Evans asked the county commissioners Monday to keep the park commission in mind if additional money becomes available under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA).

Evans said the recreation programs were not expected to grow as rapidly as they have and so no money was budgeted for these programs.

The fall and winter programs being considered are: after school, evening and weekend programs at the First Ward Park Community Building; evening programs at three of the county's school districts; recreational activities for senior adults at three different sites; operation of an outdoor ice skating facility; and environmental recreation programs in conjunction with schools and the cooperative extension service.

Evans told the commissioners he and Jere True, his program director, would be able to plan, organize and coordinate the winter programs and operate one or two of them.

The two added workers would be needed for seven months to operate the other programs.

Evans said the evening community recreation programs would be conducted every night, and some of the after school activities every day, making it necessary to hire more workers.

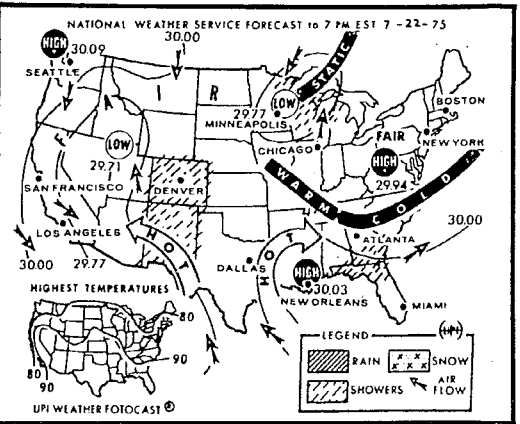

Evans said he is also looking into starting an after school tutoring program.

If the county does not receive more CETA money, Evans said the park commission could afford to hire a few part-time persons but would have to cut back drastically on its programs.

The commissioners said they will consider Evans' request if more CETA money comes through.

In other matters, the commissioners accepted the resignations of three Children's Bureau caseworkers for personal reasons. Resigning are Mrs. Donna Larkin, Mrs. Collette Friedle and John Kern Jr.

The commissioners noted there were 521 real estate transfers during June, up from 481 in June of last year, and authorized George Fox, vector control agent, to attend a meeting on gypsy moths Aug. 15 in Middletown.

Chamber requests bridge repair

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce is going to reenter the fray on the Ridgeway Street bridge in East Stroudsburg.

Reacting to a report by Frank Lanterman, chairman of the Chamber's Community Services Committee, at their monthly meeting Monday the directors voted to send a new series of letters requesting immediate attention to bridge repairs.

To be included in the letter to the borough of East Stroudsburg is a further suggestion that if repairs could not be made, that the bridge be closed to auto traffic.

Others involved in the bridge are the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad, PennDOT and Monroe County. In January the state Public Utilities Commission ruled that the four agencies shared responsibility for bridge repairs. PennDOT, which the PUC said should provide 40 per cent of the funds, has appealed and the PUC has not ruled on the appeal.

The first formal complaint leading to the PUC decision was filed by the borough in May, 1974.

Charles Swisher, administrator at the General Hospital of Monroe County and member of the Chamber's Community Services Committee, reported that the campaign to retain local medical ties to the Lehigh Valley as opposed to a state mandate to switch to Scranton-Wilkes-Barre, is progressing.

He suggested a continuing but "low-key" effort working with congressmen Joseph McDade and Fred Rooney and with U.S. senators Richard Schweiker and Hugh Scott.

Swisher said Governor Milton Shapp had asked the Department of HEW to make the local area the one exception to the state's master health service plan.

Directors also agreed to send a monthly newsletter to all members with meeting minutes going to directors. They also decided to put first emphasis of a new brochure on facts of interest to businesses interested in locating in the Poconos with secondary attention to items of interest to potential new residents.

In legislative action, a resolution opposed the proposed school codes revision on the grounds it would decrease local autonomy; another opposed bills No. 824 and 826 concerned with increasing the manufacturer's costs of work-mens compensation insurance; and a third opposed a proposal to legalize secondary boycotts at a construction site.

New members accepted are Pro-Tek Construction, Complete Mobile Home Service and Repair, Pocono World, Inc. and Hill Meadow Stables.

Who bailed out the Navy in 1798?

We were still paying off the Revolutionary War. Then we were faced with yet another war, this time on the seas. How could we afford to build up our Navy? Well, Congress called for help through the issuance of government securities. And the citizens came through to the tune of $711,700. Enough to make the down payment on 10 new ships.

Their investment paid off. And you can follow their example today. When you buy U.S. Savings Bonds at your bank or through the Payroll Savings Plan at work, you're investing in your country. And as if that weren't enough, you're helping yourself to a safe and generous return. What better way to stay afloat?

More than 130 to testify at DRBC Tocks hearing

PHILADELPHIA — Over 130 persons are scheduled to testify on the Tocks Island Project during public hearings today and Wednesday conducted by the Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC) in Philadelphia.

It is the final set of hearings the DRBC will hold on the recently completed $1.5 million restudy of the Tocks project done by URS-Madigan-Praeger, Inc. and Conklin and Rossant of New York, N.Y.

The DRBC will then make a definitive policy decision on the project and pass it along to Congress by Aug. 28.

Locally, Monroe County Commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, representing the Four County Task Force, will testify in opposition to the proposed dam. Mina Haelele, president of the Delaware Valley Conservation Association, is also scheduled to testify against the dam.

Several statements in support of the proposed 37-mile long lake and dam have already been received by the DRBC.

Among them is Kenneth R. Myers, president of the Water Resources Association of the Delaware River Basin, who said his organization is concerned with wise management of the basin's water resources.

Myers said his organization is concerned with saving lives from the next disastrous flood like that of 1955; concerned with providing enough water storage in case of drought as in the early 1960's; maintaining high water quality in the basin and control of the runoff.

Myers notes the study often mentions eutrophication which is common in water-impounding projects elsewhere.

"We agree with this and observe that the establishment of man-made lakes, far from being a detriment, are in fact a benefit to mankind."

James Kerney Jr., editor emeritus of the Trenton Times, said special interest environmental groups "Make governors quake in their boots." He said the groups' claims that the dam will cause silting, eutrophication and other problems have been refuted by the restudy.

"There are tens of millions of people who need the river today for their lives and their livelihood. And, realistically, alternatives to Tocks Island explored in the restudy will simply not meet these needs."

Kerney stated that New Jersey urgently needs the dam. "North Jersey has no future without Tocks Island water. South Jersey needs the flood protection. All of New Jersey needs the power the project will produce."

Samuel S. Baxter, a consulting engineer and former chief engineer for the Philadelphia Water Department, said he supports construction of the dam.

"We should get on with construction which will provide for the millions of people in the basin and service area with flood protection, recreation, water supply and power."

H. Mat Adams, former New Jersey commissioner of Conservation and Economic Development, testified that New Jersey "had its water supply eggs in the Tocks Island basket for about two decades now and it would be disastrous for this position to be changed at this late date."

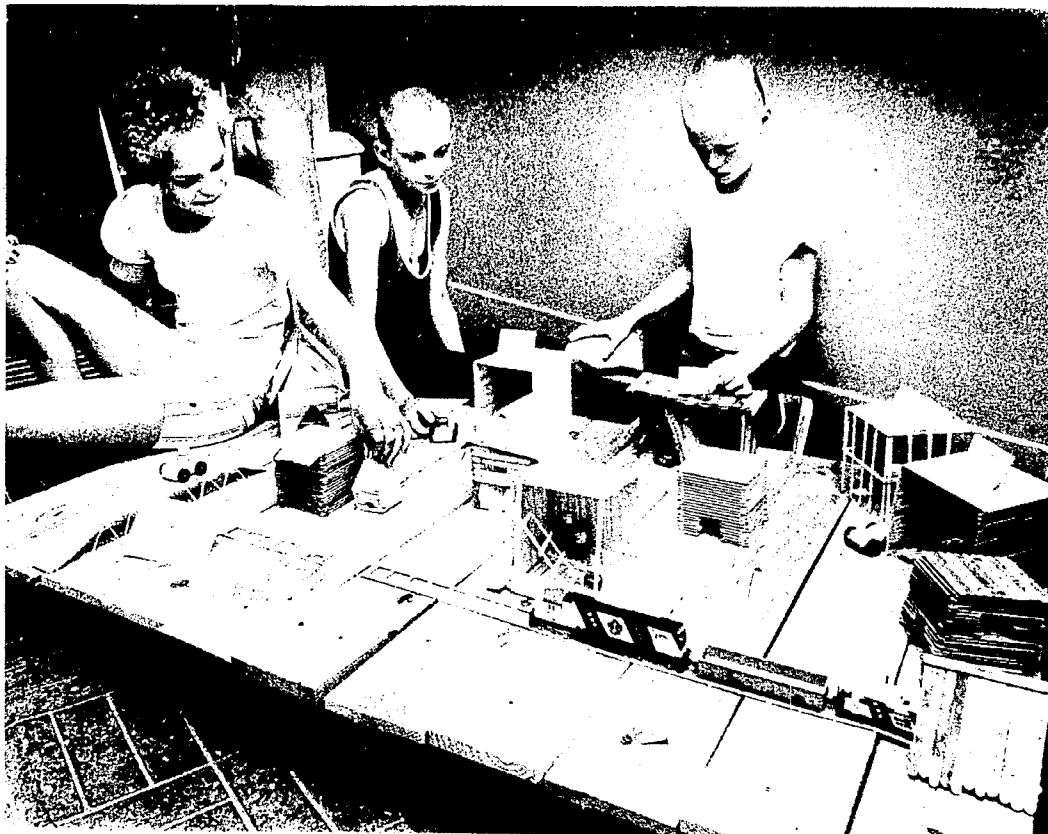

"I most strongly urge you to support the Tocks Island project and to request the Congress to appropriate construction funds for the project immediately."

Frank W. Dressler, former executive director of the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC) recommended in his statement the governors of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York convene a meeting between local officials in the Tocks Island impact area to determine how to manage land use, and that the DRBC reaffirm its stand and urge Congress to proceed with construction.

Mrs. Francis Magee of the Penn Valley Garden Club, Mrs. Robert Taylor, board member of the Pennsylvania Forestry Assn., Paul Balliet, president of the Lehigh River Restoration Assn., and William Shafer, chairman of the legislative committee of the Orange County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs all testified in support of construction of the dam.

The restudy findings include: The project would have an adverse effect on land use, the environment and transportation; it would enhance the appeal of the lower Delaware to water-using industries; township public services would be strained; and the absence of land use controls in some areas could be worse for the region's development than the proposed dam project.

Kindergarten crusaders will drive to the rescue

STROUDSBURG — Nine parents in the Stroudsburg Area School District said Monday they would rather drive their children to kindergarten than let the district send them full days for three months periods.

Meeting with district elementary director Russell E. Treible and elementary principal Ralph W. Kauf, parents called a district plan to send students to school full days "ridiculous."

They called for a return to the traditional daily, half-day sessions and vowed to drive their children to school to save the district about $30,000 in transportation costs.

Parents claimed their children have neither the attention spans nor the energy to attend school for a full day.

"Routine is extremely important to a very young child," said Mrs. Caroline LeBar, commenting on the plan to send older kindergarten students to school full days for three months and younger students full days for a second three-month period.

Treible said the teachers claim they need to see students daily to accomplish anything and found full-day, alternate day sessions unacceptable.

He added the alternate three-month quarter sessions would be evaluated in January before further scheduling was conducted.

"That takes care of the educational requirements," said Mrs. LeBar, "but what about the emotional requirements (of the children)?"

Treible said he agreed with parents the daily, half-day sessions are best, but the district board of education ordered budgetary cuts.

The board approved the alternate quarter arrangement at its July 16 meeting.

Treible also agreed to go with full-day, alternate day scheduling or half-day sessions if parents can prove the majority of kindergarten parents will drive their own and other children to school.

The group said it will telephone parents of 300 kindergarten students in the next two weeks and ask them if they will transport children, and whether they favor alternate

Some parents said if scheduling is not changed, they will picket the schools and withdraw their children from kindergarten.

While administrators said they will determine the legality of allowing parents to transport the children, a local insurance agent said many parents might not carry enough automobile insurance at the moment to do so safely.

The agent said the minimum bodily injury liability insurance required under the new no-fault law is only $15,000 per injured person and $30,000 per accident, not enough coverage should a car carrying four children crash.

Parents of injured children could sue the driver for $300,000 per child. The agent suggested parents who agree to transport other children increase their liability insurance to a minimum of $100,000 per person and $300,000 per accident.

The problem of kindergarten scheduling was caused when the district school board asked administrators to cut the budget and administrators decided to eliminate additional bus runs associated with half-day kindergarten sessions.

Head Start asks $25,000 toward $95,000 budget

STROUDSBURG — The local Head Start program asked the Monroe County Commissioners Monday for $25,137 to supplement its 1975-76 budget.

Head Start is also requesting $46,225 from the federal government and $23,814 in state services for a total budget of $95,176, according to Mrs. Johanna Weaver, director and social service coordinator.

Last year the county contributed $20,378 to the program for disadvantaged children between the ages of three and five.

Included in the county request were salaries of $7,245 for a parent coordinator and $3,428 for two classroom aides.

Proposed travel expenses were listed as $6,745, which Mrs. Weaver explained included daily transportation to the program and eight field trips.

Other travel expenses are trips by staff members to parents' homes, trips to state directors meetings three times a year and social services.

"Staff members may take a parent to a job interview or to head start meetings at night," Mrs. Weaver said.

An undetermined part of Head Start's budget is rent and utilities for the program if it moves to St. John's Lutheran Church.

Previously the program had been located at East Stroudsburg State College where it did not have to pay rent, but had to move when the school needed the space.

The Rev. William C. Leopold of St. John's Church said Monday that rent was still being negotiated but that the church was suggesting $12,000 a year.

"It's not really rent. It's mostly to defray the costs of custodial care, utilities and insurance," he said, adding that about half the cost would pay custodial services to three rooms and an office.

Commissioner Arlington Martin said last Wednesday that the county was obligated to provide housing for the program but explained Monday that this was a moral, not legal, obligation.

"There is funding for certain areas, but housing isn't one of them. So, if we want the program, we have certain responsibilities. The program has proved to be worthwhile," Martin said.

Other costs in the budget request to the county include $390 for consumable supplies, which Mrs. Weaver said is a "reasonable" figure because any extra money can be spent for supplies and because donations of supplies are often received.

The request also included $3,029 for fringe benefits; $1,555 for consultants.

Monroe planners adopt formal grievance policy

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission adopted a policy Monday night to avoid receiving a rash of complaints from irate land development residents.

The planners decided that all future complaints about developers not following sales agreements would have to have statements by an attorney and an engineer.

Acting director Vincent Feeney told the commission he had received a petition from 110 residents of Stillwater Lakes in Pocono Summit who were upset that the developer wanted to turn the operation over to the property owners association.

"This is only part of the problem. It's part of the Lake Valhalla problem," said chairman Marshall Reese, referring to complaints about road conditions by Lake Valhalla residents in Middle Smithfield Township.

The policy adopted by the commission is the same one that was followed in handling the Lake Valhalla complaints.

Feeney explained that he had the complainants hire an engineer to pinpoint locations of alleged violations of the county's subdivision ordinance.

At the June planning commission meeting, the commission received a letter from the resident's engineer, outlining 24 alleged violations of the county ordinance.

It was reported later in the meeting Monday night that the developer, Donald Egan, has agreed to correct those violations which come under the county's jurisdiction.

Before deciding on a policy, commission members expressed fears that they would be "flooded" with complaints that they weren't sure were in their jurisdiction.

"If we don't have an established policy, we'll have 10 complaints at our next meeting and 10 more after that," Reese said.

Commission member Jack Wallie said the commission had some obligation "to chase down" complaints but added he didn't know how far the commission's jurisdiction went.

Land plan returns, but at what price?

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planning Commission may try again to get a county comprehensive land use plan, only this time at possibly more than twice the originally contracted price.

Engineer Leo Achterman Jr. told the planning commission Monday night that he and the firm of Albright and Friel of Betz Environmental Engineers Inc., are considering a "joint venture to provide a comprehensive plan."

He said a "middle of the road" estimate for the work would be nine months at a cost near $65,000, which could rise or fall depending on the results of two alternatives.

One consideration is whether they can get the bulk of questionnaires still possessed by Richard S. Cowan of Quaker-town or try to complete the plan with the 250 replies the county has.

Cowan was the engineer hired at $29,975, but paid $13,000 to develop a plan by last Sept. 28. However, he didn't submit the plan until Feb. 14, and it was rejected by the planners.

Achterman said a second consideration which could affect the plan is a decision whether to wait for the Department of Housing and Urban Development to complete flood plain mapping.

Safety procedures bypassed

Gas firm faulted for fatal leak

By HARRIET LEEDS

Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A Public Utilities Commission (PUC) official said gas company workers didn't follow safety procedures when checking a reported gas leak last month which led to the death of an 82-year-old Stroudsburg man.

PUC engineer John Flaherty is conducting an investigation into relations between the Stroudsburg Gas Company and local emergency service organizations.

Flaherty said a PUC investigation showed the gas company was called to check a possible gas leak three days before an explosion destroyed the home of Victor Mion, at 505 King St., on the morning of June 17.

Gas company records showed that gas lines to Mion's home and a nearby residence had been shut off, Flaherty said.

"We still don't know why the record said the line was plugged when it wasn't," Flaherty said Monday.

He claimed the workers followed this information only and checked in the street for the reported leak but didn't check in neighboring homes, as safety procedures require.

He added that the Stroudsburg Gas company safety manual also tells workers to widen their search for a leak if a check of the most likely source has negative results.

The cause of the explosion on June 17 was a leaking gas cap on an abandoned line which ran into Mion's home, according to a PUC investigation.

Flaherty met with Stroudsburg fire chief Thomas Phillips and Glen Butler, east district manager of Penn Fuel Gas, the parent firm which owns Stroudsburg Gas along with 19 other gas companies, and several other firemen Monday at the fire station.

The meeting was basically a gripe session, with the firemen citing numerous instances of gas leak complaints that the gas company repaired either after much prodding or when the customer had to call for second repairs after a short time.

One fireman told Butler, "You can't tell me none of your men could smell a leak... it takes somebody getting killed to get you to move. It looks like you're digging the whole town up."

Butler denied this, saying no more digging is being done now than is usual.

Phillips said he and the police chief went to the hospital to talk to Mion about the explosion, adding, "Maybe that's why I'm so bitter."

He said if "people like Cornwall (Stroudsburg manager of the gas company, Rae Cornwall) had to do this 'maybe they wouldn't take gas leaks as lightly as they seem to now."

Flaherty said his investigation would continue until he finds out what went wrong and "what we can do to stop it from happening again."

Asked if the PUC would fine Stroudsburg Gas Co., Flaherty said "they get enough sanctions on lawsuits." He added that under the National Pipeline Safety Act, the company could potentially be fined up to $1,000 a day.

Flaherty urged the firemen to take the problem to the borough council and to work with the gas company towards a solution.

Cornwall was away on vacation and could not be reached.

Water Gap budget drain may be plugged by grants

DELAWARE WATER GAP — If Delaware Water Gap is successful in the two grant applications it filed last week, borough residents may only have to pay $6,000 of the estimated $300,000 it would cost to replace the borough's antiquated water pipeline system.

James Cadue Jr., executive director of the Monroe County General Authority, told a special council meeting Monday 80 per cent funding may be obtained from the federal Economic Development Administration and $50,000 could be obtained from the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce through the Community Facilities Act.

"If you get the two applications, you could only have to come up with $6,000," Cadue said.

The feasibility study for the water system estimates the project cost at $280,000 so the borough is working with $300,000 as a "ballpark figure."

Cadue urged council to adopt the feasibility study so it could present the proper engineering documents with future applications.

Council had not adopted the study because it was dissatisfied with some of the figures on the sewerage section.

John Lee of Hess Associates told council one of the sources of funding, the Economic Development Administration, is getting the funds it is distributing from a $2 billion public works bill recently signed by the President.

Because of this, Lee said, the water project would have to be done within a year.

"The name of this game is unemployment," he said. The forms are oriented towards number of man hours of work the project would generate.

The borough council would have to hasten its deliberations as to where the lines would go and commission necessary engineering. Lee said the starting date listed on the application was fall, 1975.

Since the council did not have to immediately decide on its water line plans, it turned to the subject of a new water ordinance and rate schedule.

The consulting engineers from Hess had prepared the schedule in December.

Lee said it would be premature to consider the rate schedule before the borough knows exactly how much money it will have to raise to cover capital improvements.

He also suggested the borough consider water meters in its general improvement scheme.

Council did, however, decide to purchase a water pump. The pump would be used on the Shepherd Avenue project, twice annually to pump out the reservoir and possibly at the pool.

Apparently, when the borough employees opened up Shepherd Avenue for the water line replacement, they hit the main, causing the ditch to flood.

post office, at Main Street and Shepherd Avenue is also no good, the firemen said. The closest usable hydrant is in front of Omega Natural Foods.

The problem seems to be that the hydrants are connected to the borough's water mains by one and a quarter inch pipe in some places.

"Nobody knows what's under the ground," said water committee chairman Duane Walck.

He said the fire safety system would have to be updated along with the water system.

"The fire system is high priority," Walck said, "We are in sad shape in case of a fire."

Engineers from Hess Associates said the standard minimum line connection to a fire hydrant is a six inch line.

Fire safety system not so hot in DWG

DELAWARE WATER GAP — If a fire breaks out on Shepherd Avenue, the Delaware Water Gap fire department will not be able to handle it alone.

Two firemen attending the council meeting Monday, John Siptroth and Bill Kurtzke, said the hydrant at Minis Drive and Shepherd Avenue is unusable.

Shepherd Avenue is the only unprotected street in the borough, they said, because they now have enough hose to reach anywhere else.

If there were a fire on Shepherd, they said Shawnee and East Stroudsburg fire departments would be called so there would be enough hose to get water from Lake Lenape.

The hydrant in front of the ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Billy Martin, the tempestuous maverick who succeeds in winning games and aggravating people wherever he goes in the world of baseball, was fired Monday as manager of the Texas Rangers.

Frank Lucchesi, who has served as Martin's third base coach for the past two seasons and who managed the Philadelphia Phillies through 2 1/2 dismal years, was named as Martin's successor.

The Rangers called a news conference Monday night to announce the firing, but Martin said several hours before the news conference that Lucchesi told him he would replace him as manager.

Martin said Ranger management would not allow him to run the ball club as he was promised under former owner Bob Short, who hired Martin.

"I think it has something to do with me, not the record of the ball club," he said. "The club has been through some tough times, but I argued so much against what they are doing. I can't keep going that way and see my players face to face."

It was the third time in Martin's stormy, six-year managerial career that he has been dismissed because of incompatibility with the front office and on all three occasions he had helped turn a ball club around before his departure.

Martin was in the midst of his most disappointing year as a manager, but it was not the performance of the Rangers—they were 44-51 going into

Monday night's game against Boston—that led to his exit from Texas.

Just as it was in Minnesota, where he was fired at the close of the 1969 season, and at Detroit, where he was dismissed late in the 1973 season, Martin's crusty manner finally grew too much for Ranger management.

Martin's fate was sealed Saturday night in a tumultuous session with majority stockholder and chairman of the board Brad Corbett. The basis of that discussion was that familiar baseball argument—youth vs. experience—with Corbett lining up on the side of youth.

That particular meeting, however, only hurried a decision which several minority stockholders had been urging

for some time. "I've been accused of being disloyal to the organization," Martin said early Monday. "You can kill me first before you can accuse me of being disloyal."

"My reputation carried down here again. If they flat fire me they are entitled to do it. I take my stand. I have proved my way is the winning way. A man has got to stand up for his convictions."

Martin, 47, came to Texas in 1973 only a matter of days after he was fired as manager of the Detroit Tigers. Bob Short, who then owned the Rangers, fired Texas Manager Whitey Herzog in order to make room for Martin.

"I'd fire my grandmother if I had a chance to get Billy Martin," Short said at the time. Martin took over a club that was labeled the worst in baseball during 1972 and 1973. But in 1974 the Rangers posted an 84-76 record and challenged Oakland for the American League West pennant.

Martin was named UPI's American League manager of the year.

His predictions at the beginning of this season were for a Ranger pennant, but Texas suffered through a disastrous month of June to slide further and further behind division-leading Oakland.

Lucchesi, 48, managed 19 years in the minor leagues before taking over the head job at Philadelphia in 1970. The Phillies suffered through two losing seasons and were on their way to another when Lucchesi was dismissed in 1972.

Reds unload batting guns to hand Phils 10-4 defeat

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds batted 11 men during a five run second inning and went on to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies 10-4 Monday night.

Tony Perez started the second with a double to right and scored on a single by George Foster, who drove in three runs in the game. Cesar Geronimo walked and Dave Concepcion singled to score Foster and send Geronimo to third. Concepcion stole second and when John Oates' throw went into center, Geronimo scored. Pete Rose walked and Ken Griffey singled in Concepcion.

Tom Hilgendorf relieved starter Ron Schueler, 3-2, and walked Joe Morgan and Perez forcing in Rose with the fifth run.

The Reds added two in the fourth on a run producing single by Morgan and a sacrifice fly by Johnny Bench. Three more scored against Wayne Twitchell in the seventh the first on a single by Morgan and the last two on a double by Foster.

Dave Cash drove home the Phillies first two runs with sacrifice flies in the third and fifth and Oates knocked in the final two with a bases loaded single in the sixth.

Astros, 6-2

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wilbur Howard hammered out three hits and the Houston Astros turned four double-plays on grounders by Joe Torre to give Ken Forsch a 6-2 victory over the New York Mets Monday night.

Torre's four double-play grounders set a National League record and made him only the third player in major league history to hit into that many in one ballgame. Goose Goslin in 1934 and Mike Kreevich in 1939 also hit into four double-plays in one game.

In all four instances, Torre came up after Felix Millan had singled.

Houston scored in the first inning on Howard's first hit, a single, an infield hit by Greg Gross on which shortstop Mike Phillips' throwing error sent runners to second and third and infield grounders by Enos Cabell and Bob Watson which scored the two runs.

Braves, 4-1

MONTREAL (UPI) — Vic Correll and Dusty Baker each drove in a run in the eighth inning and Earl Williams belted a two-run home run in the ninth Monday night to give the Atlanta Braves to a 4-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The Braves trailed 1-0 when Clarence Gaston was walked by Montreal losing pitcher Dan Warthen. After Larvell Blanks struck out, Correll doubled for the second time in the game to score Gaston. Roland Office grounded out but Baker hit a pinch-hit single to send home Correll with the winner.

Williams hit his eighth home run of the season after Darrell Evans had singled.

The Expos' only run came in the second inning when Pete Mackanin walked, took third on Larry Parrish's single and came home on shortstop Tim Foli's sacrifice fly to center field.

Five gain 35 and over advance

STROUDSBURG — Five players won matches Monday in the men's "35 and Over" Tennis Tournament at Stroudsburg tennis courts.

Top-seeded Joe Villano beat Marty Acker, 6-1, 6-2, while third seed Len Farace ousted Sam Jordan, 6-2, 6-3, and fourth seed Bill Cassebaum disposed of Jake Powell, 6-3, 6-1. Bill Hay beat Jim Hansen, 6-2, 7-5 and Ed Featherstone defeated Ken Niccol, 6-0, 6-1 in other results.

The last quarter-final match, pitting Cassebaum against Hay, will be played today. Semi-final action will be held Wednesday and the final is scheduled for Thursday.

Jenkins four-hits Boston in Lucchesi's debut, 6-0

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Dave Moates, inserted in the lead-off spot as the first managerial mover by Frank Lucchesi, produced a homer in the first inning Monday night to start Texas to a 6-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Lucchesi, who replaced the fired Billy Martin Monday, put Moates at the top of the order in place of old Martin favorite Cesar Tovar. Moates, called up two weeks ago as part of the Rangers' commitment to youth that eventually led to Martin's dismissal, started the four-run Ranger first inning with his first major league homer.

Ferguson Jenkins, 12-10, threw the shutout for Texas, allowing four hits and walked two.

After Moates' homer off loser Luis Tiant, 13-9, Len Randle doubled, Mike Hargrove singled, Jeff Burroughs doubled and two additional run-scoring ground-outs produced the big inning.

The Rangers added a run in the fifth on Jeff Burroughs' 19th homer and picked up another in the sixth with Jim Sundberg singling in Toby Harrah from second.

Twin Boro had scored a pair of runs in the second and third innings and added a single run in the fourth for a 5-2 lead when the game was resumed at the point of protest. Northwest Bethlehem had single runs in the second and third.

Scott Mery earned the victory and Bob Price suffered the loss in relief of Marshall and Morgan.

Lee Nase had three hits and Jeff Wert two in addition to Smith's perfect night with four straight hits. Wert had collected three hits in Friday's game, but lost one when it came after the point of protest.

Ann Gould doubled for Stroud Manor and Pat Newell picked up the victory, while Pearl LeBar took the loss for El Toro.

Joan Frailey was the winner for Happy Hour, with Bridget Hippler cracking two singles and a triple and Sue Crooks collecting a single and triple. Gail Sherwood took the loss.

Winner Barbara Eilber had two hits for B. J. Donna Emery and Norma Hilgert doubled and Debbie Smith tripled for B.J., while Kathy Koberlein took the loss.

New York Yankees 3-0 Monday night.

Blyleven, 8-4, recorded his first victory in 10 days and his first shutout of the year. He struck out five and walked one, an intentional pass to Lou Piniella in the seventh.

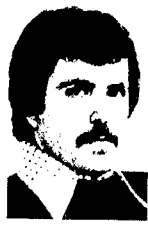

The Twins bunched three consecutive singles off loser Pat Dobson, 9-10, for their first inning run. With one out, Jerry Terrell singled, moved to second on Rod Carew's hit and scored on Tony Oliva's liner off Sandy Alomar's glove.

Minnesota clinched it in the seventh with a pair of runs. Carew led off with a single and took second on Oliva's single. Larry Hise ran for Oliva and Eric Soderholm advanced both runners with a sacrifice. Lyman Bostock knocked in both runners with his third hit of the game.

P.V., Mounties need coaches

By JOE MIEGOC
Record Sports Editor

Two area high schools, Stroudsburg and Pleasant Valley, are expected to name basketball coaches shortly, with possible action at Pleasant Valley during the school board meeting at the end of this week.

It's no secret that John Konawalik probably won't be back at Pleasant Valley. The people out there were after his hide last year at this time and only a final push got him enough votes for another season. But the Bears, playing the entire season with inexperienced players on the varsity level, finished 2-19 with both victories coming over North-western.

There have been some names kicked around, but from what we can gather, the decision now centers on two or three coaches, all of whom have coached before. Action could come at the school board meeting Thursday night.

Stroudsburg School Board met last week, but didn't take up the matter of a new basketball coach. Technically, Bill Reese, who filled in for the final games of last season after Ed Branyan resigned in the squabble surrounding the eligibility of a freshman player to play junior varsity basketball, could still be called the coach since the board hasn't selected a new one yet.

Another item to consider when thinking about a basketball coach at Stroudsburg is the budget situation. The board probably won't attempt to bring a new coach into the district and have to get a teaching position after laying off some teachers in the budget tightening last month.

The financial plight, plus the lateness of the date, indicate Reese may just be retained as a full-time coach. But there are other former coaches in the system who could move back into the job without too much fuss.

Stroudsburg moves on Stroudsburg, with its 7-1 victory Saturday, has advanced to the semi-finals of the District 20 Little League tournament. The victory settled the North area championship.

Stroudsburg will now face Bethlehem South Side, winner of the East title, at 6 p.m. Thursday at the State Belt Little League field in Mount Bethel, which incidentally is one of the finest Little League diamonds around.

The winners of the South and West crowns (Quaker-town and Northwest) are playing at 6 p.m. today at Quaker-town and the winner of that game will meet the North-East winner at 5 p.m. Saturday at Lehigh Little League field for the District 20 championship and the right to advance to inter-district competition.

Petty nears $2 million mark

With a second place finish Sunday in the Nashville 420 Grand National stock car race at Nashville, Tenn., Richard Petty seems assured of surpassing the two million dollar plateau in career earnings Aug. 3 in the Purolator 500 stock car race at Pocono International Raceway.

A.J. Foyt, with $2.5 million won, is the only other driver ever to surpass $2 million.

Petty earned $3,455 to bring his career total to $1,993,533, or just $6,467 short of two million. Petty has won a USAC stock car event at Pocono and also won last year's inaugural Purolator 500 at Pocono, so he's a good bet to be near the top if not in Victory Lane when the race is completed.

By the way, practice will be held at Pocono Friday, Aug. 1 and Saturday, Aug. 2, with qualifications for the 40-car starting field also being held Saturday. The race itself will be held with a 1 p.m. start Sunday.

Pocono will admit servicemen and women free for the qualifications with military identification being the only thing needed to get in. A total of $102,075 will be up for grabs in race prize money.

Nazareth races halted by rain

NAZARETH — Nazareth Speedway was forced to cancel its third regularly scheduled Sunday racing program in a row due to a tremendously hard thunder shower which drenched the speedway grounds for over two hours. The Joie Chitwood thrill show which was scheduled to appear will return on Sunday, August 17.

Next Sunday the modified stocks will compete in four 25-lap feature events in addition to a full sportsman show.

Top drivers expected include Carl Van Horn, Bob Pickell, Buzzie Reutimann, Frank Schneider, John Harrell, Wayne Reutimann, Rich Euriack, Bob Botteher, Tighe Scott, Rags Carter, Sonny Strupp and Charlie Gilmore.

The four 25-lap feature show will start at 6:30 p.m. Both divisions will run a full card of heats before the tremendous feature events.

Pro football training camp roundup

Steeler quarterback struggle resumes

LATROBE, Pa. (UPI) — Like every year since 1972, there is an intense, but quiet, struggle among the top three quarterbacks in the Pittsburgh Steeler's training camp for the number one spot.

Head Coach Chuck Noll, however, already has made up his mind.

"Terry Bradshaw is my quarterback," he said during a recent lunch break. "He definitely will start the College All-Star game."

But Noll's commitment hasn't stopped Terry Hanratty and Joe Gilliam from trying their best to unseat Bradshaw.

Gilliam started the first six games of 1974 and Hanratty took over in 1973 when Bradshaw became injured. But in every season since 1970 when the kid from Louisiana was the Steeler's top draft choice, Bradshaw always found his way back to the starting lineup.

He says he has "no doubts at all" he'll be Noll's selection for all this year, too.

"I had a good year last year and I have a lot of confidence in myself," Bradshaw said.

"I'm in great shape, the best I've ever been in, and I'm also working very hard," he added. "I think that alone will keep me in there."

Both Gilliam and Hanratty give practically identical answers to questions about their second-string status.

Each is confident and determined. They steadily deny any outright competition with Bradshaw and disagree with the current starter that he need only remain in condition and work hard to stay first team.

"I'm not in competition with anybody," said Gilliam. "I'm trying to get Joey in shape, and when I know I'm ready, everything's right."

"Sure, it's important to start, but sometimes that's out of your hands. It's all a matter of opportunity, and if you get it."

After an impressive preseason in 1974, Gilliam got the nod and led the team to a 4-1 record until Noll gave Bradshaw the leading role following a bout with tendinitis.

Joe stops by

math's intentions to play with the club this season.

A team spokesman said Namath appeared in camp Sunday night, picked up the team playbook and headed for Tuscaloosa, Ala., a city that Joe considers one of his "homes" since his college days at the University of Alabama.

"There are no meetings scheduled between Joe and the club," the spokesman said. But his picking up the playbook is a positive sign.

Eagles cut Kozlosky

CHESTER — The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League have released linebacker Tom Kozlosky, a free agent candidate from East Stroudsburg State College.

Kozlosky, who attended an Eagles' spring training session and was invited back to training camp on the basis of the ability he showed in that session, was one of six rookies cut by the Eagles.

Redskins

CARLSLE, Pa. (UPI) — The Washington Redskins released four-year veteran wide receiver Cotton Speyrer Monday, along with five other players, dropping the number in camp down to 91.

Speyrer, who was originally drafted as a rookie out of Texas by the Redskins, spent most of his injury-plagued career with the Baltimore Colts. He was traded to Baltimore for wide receiver Roy Jefferson in 1971.

Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — New Green Bay Packers Coach and General Manager Bart Starr said Monday's first full practice session of the 1975 training camp went according to schedule "right down to the minute."

Starr said the first sessions involving the veterans gave "a big lift" to the camp and picked up the pace.

"There is something about the first two practices at which the veterans are present that gives a big lift to everyone," he said.

"There are a couple who have to lose weight but after talking to the other coaches, I would say that generally speaking the veterans' condition is good — very good."

Cardinals

CHARLESTON, Ill. (UPI) — Wide receiver Gary Hammond, who threw the longest pass completion in the National Football Conference last season, reported Monday to the St. Louis Cardinals training camp.

Hammond, arriving two days late, brought the number of players in the Cardinal camp to 43. His long pass of last season was 81 yards to Jackie Smith after he took a lateral from quarterback Jim Hart.

Bears

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — Chicago Bears wide receiver George Farmer, who signed his 1975 contract during the week-end after playing out his option last season, dislocated his left shoulder Monday and was scheduled for surgery.

Team officials said Farmer would be operated on Monday night. His arm will be in a sling for about four weeks, the officials said, but he may be able to play after six weeks.

$300,000 in gold purse for OTB Classic Sunday

Gold up for grabs at Monticello

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was a 10-minute glimpse of $300,000 worth of gold bars Monday — a Lloyds of London time limit — and then Dr. Kenneth Mazik drew the No. 5 pole position for his 8-5 favorite Silk Stockings, with a chance of winning $150,000 to further studies at his school for autistic children.

"Sometimes silk is better than gold," Mazik said, envisioning the 50 per cent winner's purse in Sunday's $300,000 Monticello-New York City OTB Classic at Monticello Raceway in upstate New York.

Three guards from a Brink's armored car carried the 112 pounds of gold into a midtown restaurant where the gold positions were drawn. The gold was purchased on the London exchange on July 17 at $164.5 an ounce. At noon time, the armed guard toted the two-foot x 9-inch wooden crate back into the steel-plated truck for the 100-mile ride along an undisclosed route.

Echo Brook Phil drew the No. 1 position in the 10-horse field that was forced into two tiers because Monticello Raceway can only accommodate eight horses across. The No. 9 and 10 horses start back of the No. 1 and 2 pacers.

Tarport Hap, second favorite at 7-2 in the early morning line was picked for the No. 7 post. Her owner, Alan Leavitt, wasn't too pleased with the position because Echo Brook Phil, an 8-1 shot, and No. 9 Momentum, 6-1 "are great front runners."

Golden Fella starts from No. 2 and is listed at 20-1. Spirit Happy was picked No. 3 and is 30-1. J.R. Call drew post position 4 and the odds were 20-1. Say No More, No. 6, and Tango Byrd, No. 8, carried early 20-1 odds and No. 10 Shirley's Beau was in a 4-1.

Silk Stocking, purchased from Leavitt for $20,000 when Dr. Mazik sought financial means of supporting his school for kids who are "mentally incapable of communicating with the outside

Yarborough, Baker enter Purolator 500

LONG POND — Richard Petty may be chasing $2 million in career money winnings in the August 3rd Purolator 500 at Pocono, but chasing him will be Cale Yarborough and Buddy Baker, both out to avenge their loss to him in last year's inaugural event.

A sudden shower hit the 2.5-mile Superspeedway eight laps from the end of the race, bringing out an early checkered flag. At that time Baker was running second to Petty some 20 seconds behind. Yarborough followed Baker by another 12 seconds.

Last year Baker won the pole position for the Purolator 500 with a qualifying speed of 144.122 miles per hour in the Bud Moore-prepared Ford. This year he is driving the same model, and it has already brought him victory in the rich Winston 500 at Talladega, Alabama and a second to Richard Petty in the recent Firecracker 400.

Yarborough, the only active driver to win the prestigious Southern 500 three times, will be driving the Holly Farms Chevrolet managed by the legendary Junior Johnson. Yarborough has won one race and $64,610 this year, his lone victory being the early season Carolina 500 at Rockingham, N.C.

"But it was good experience. I'd recommend it," Miss Post commented.

Miss Lopez was in contention as late as midway through the final round but seven bogeys on the last day killed her chances. Still she was satisfied with her showing, best by an amateur in this tournament in eight years, and said she proved that "I wasn't afraid to come out here and try and play my best."

Miss Lopez was particularly pleased with the respect her game was accorded by the professionals in the field. She said they were "just super, fantastic," to her.

"They treated me like I was a pro too," she said.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — One of this summer's biggest and funniest box office successes is Blake Edwards' "The Return of the Pink Panther" starring Peter Sellers as the bumbling Parisian flic, Inspector Jacques Clouseau. This the third time around for Sellers as Clouseau, courtesy of producer-director Edwards and United Artists, which released the film. "The Pink Panther" and "A Shot In the Dark" introduced Edwards and Sellers to the wacky world of Clouseau. Since Blake Edwards also co-authored "The Return of the Pink Panther" with Frank Waldman, we've asked him to comment on comedy and movie-making in general. (We won't mention that Edwards is married to Julie Andrews.)

"I'm frequently asked, 'how can you devote your time and resources to comedy at a time like this when the world is facing so many threatening problems?' Frankly, I believe that one of the biggest problems the world faces today is a lack of a sense of humor, and by a sense of humor, I mean each of us having the ability to laugh at himself or herself. It's very easy to laugh at somebody else, but it's all too rare to be able to take a humorous view of oneself. Personally, I believe we've got to find some way to take ourselves less seriously.

"Unfortunately, many critics believe that comedy, in general, because it deals with laughter, is therefore trivial. I don't subscribe to that view. I find that comedy fills a basic personal need, a need to laugh, to have fun and above all, to fulfill a need to have a sense of humor about myself.

"Over the years the character of Inspector Clouseau, who has been portrayed in three films by Peter Sellers, has given me a wonderful emotional outlet. Clouseau, who is a bumbling Parisian policeman, is a man who survives in spite of himself. This is, I guess, a human condition devoutly to be wished. I think that if we all sat down and thought about it a little and recognized our own inadequacies, and vulnerability, we would hope that a large measure of luck and accommodation us. I think that is one of the things that makes Clouseau attractive. He gets his reward in the end, somehow, in spite of himself. Further more, there is a nobility about Clouseau, because he tries, against all odds, and even though he is aware of his own bumbling ineptitude, he perseveres. Let's face it, he's also pompous, arrogant, clumsy and accident prone. But these are all qualities that can be attributed to almost anyone of us at almost any given time. So it's not hard to identify with Clouseau.

"Whether I'm making comedies like 'The Return of the Pink Panther,' dramas like 'Breakfast at Tiffany's' and 'Days of Wine and Roses' or thrillers like 'Gunn,' I feel a sense of fulfillment. For me movie-making is the ultimate form of expression. It encompasses all of the senses — sight, sound, and maybe eventually, touch and smell. Who knows where it is going to lead. I find making movies a means of expression that transcends writing or painting or any of the three dimensional forms. Movie-making also is good for the ego. It allows one to play god or dad or something Oedipal like that, which I guess, is another need of mine. And it's also great fun to make a movie. I enjoy the fairytale aspect of it. I guess that's the child in me, or the child in most filmmakers. While making a comedy can be and often is fun, it's also extremely difficult, more so than straight drama. I feel more secure with drama because drama can be saved by one big dramatic scene, a great performance or a combination of both. But if comedy isn't funny, the whole picture is lost. It's like telling a joke. If the joke isn't a funny joke, that's the end of it.

"And yet, when I set out to make a comedy, I've stopped thinking in terms of making an audience laugh. There have been times in my career when I was convinced that I knew what the audience wanted, and these proved to be the most disastrous ventures. On the other hand, the successful films I've done, drama or comedy, have been films I wanted to do without considering what the audience may or may not like. A movie has to be for me first, and if it turns out that my taste coincides with the audience's taste, then I've been successful in terms of the commercial side of movie-making. It also means that I've been successful in terms of a certain amount of ego return for

Divorce 'victim'

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that because a child has divorced parents he is referred to as a "victim" for the rest of his life?

I am one of those so-called victims and I don't feel victimized at all. I'm happy, and probably better-adjusted than most of my friends who have both parents.

Would it have been better if my parents had stayed together under false pretenses? Many of my friends' parents fight constantly, cheat on each other right out in the open and live phony lives to "protect the children."

Why not let them be happy "victims" instead of neurotic children who cringe at the sound of the yelling? If handled properly, a divorce need not be a trauma to children. It's over and done with quickly. Those daily hassles and "Daddy's three-week business trips" do a lot of damage and they last a long time in a child's mind.

I'm the victim of a plastic, narrow-minded society. My home was never broken. My life was never shattered. I don't hate men, I'm just more alert to the pitfalls and the seriousness of marriage.

Better For It

Dear Better: I believe it — especially after having seen some of those children whose parents stayed together "for their sake." Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann: I am a 16-year-old girl who has sold many things door-to-door such as Girl Scout cookies, raffle tickets, and candy.

In the past two years, five men have appeared at the door completely naked. Most of the incidents were at apartments. The latest one was last week when I was selling candy for a school fund-raising project.

I have checked with two girlfriends, and they admitted the same thing has happened to them. You may not want to print this letter, but I'd like to know if it is against the law for a man to answer his door nude.

We don't want to make trouble for anybody, but we'd like an answer. —

Wondering

Dear Wondering: There is no law that says a person cannot walk around nude in his own home. A man or woman who displays himself in the manner described in your letter, however, could be arrested for indecent exposure in certain jurisdictions.

On dean's list

DELAWARE VALLEY — Sherry A. Peechaka daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sharon Peechaka of Stroudsburg, has been named to the Dean's List at Delaware Valley College. This announcement was made by Dr. Joshua Feldstein, Dean of the College, who pointed out that this high academic recognition is given to members of the 1978 class who achieve a semester academic average of at least 3.0.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were both 41 when we married six years ago. I have never done anything to keep from becoming pregnant but it just hasn't happened. Ralph loves children and he's driving me crazy because he wants to become a father so badly.

I have a grown son by my first marriage. Ralph has never been married before. He is making me feel as if my inability to produce a child for him is ruining his life. Now I feel guilty about something that is not my fault. What can I say to him?

Indianapolis Woman

Dear In: You can tell Ralph that if he was so crazy to become a father, he should have married a younger woman.

Have you considered adoption? If not, I suggest you do.

Dear Ann Landers: I am frustrated and irritated and don't know what to do. So I'm doing what so many others have done before me — I'm writing to Ann Landers.

The problem is my grandchildren — 14 and 15 years of age. For years I have been sending them birthday and Christmas gifts and I have yet to receive a single acknowledgment. Their mother may casually mention, often months later, that "Debbie loved the blouse" or "Tim really appreciated the check," but from the children — nothing.

Should I continue to send them gifts and be satisfied with the knowledge that I have been thoughtful? Or should I stop and hope they get the message? —

Puzzled

Dear P.: Sorry you didn't write to me a long time ago. I could have saved you some money. To send gifts year after year with no acknowledgment is brainless. Too bad their mother didn't teach them some decent manners. "As the twig is bent . . ."
